ANTWERP, Aug. 12, 10 A. M.—Advices from the seat of war state that a great battle is momentarily expected.

STRASBOURG.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—From the best information that can be gained, it appears that the garrison at Strasbourg consists only of one regiment of foot and a small portion of the National Guard. The supplies in the place are in proportion to the garrison. A siege is therefore impossible, and the capture of the place will probably be an easy matter.

THE FIRST PRUSSIAN CORPS.

The first Prussian Corps d'Armée is at Fall Bypdourg.

REPORTS FROM FRENCH HEAD-QUARTERS.

PARIS, Aug. 12.—Advices from head-quarters represent that the best understanding exists between Marshal BAZAINE and the other Generals.

THE ARMY AT METZ.

A dispatch from Metz, dated Aug. 11, at 6½ P. M., says: It has rained all day. The army is concentrated around this place. It is being revictualed and reinforced.

M'MAHON'S RETREAT.

The retreat of McMAHON and FAILLY has been accomplished in excellent order.

GEN. BAZAINE.

Marshal BAZAINE is engaged in visiting and inspecting the troops under his command.

A REPORT CONTRADICTED.

The report that the Prussians occupy Nancy is false.

QUARTERMASTER AND ORDNANCE BUREAUS.

The Minister of War has issued very stringent orders in regard to provisioning the army, and on the subject of the supplies of Quartermaster's and ordnance stores.

PARIS.

Another Department Under Martial Law—The National Guards—Volunteering.

PARIS, Aug. 12.—The Journal Officiel publishes a decree, declaring the Department of Haute Garonne in a state of siege.

ADDITIONAL DEFENSIVE MEASURES.

A circular from the Minister of the Interior, requires the Prefects of the various Departments to encourage the formation of companies of National Guards, Volunteers and Franes Tireurs, to take the field at once. They will receive arms as soon as possible, but in the meantime they should assemble at the chief towns of the Departments to organize and drill. They will be paid one franc per day from the date of enlistment....The Journal Officiel says the Ministers of War and of the Interior, on assuming control of their departments, immediately took the most energetic measures to insure efficiency in the various branches of the service.

PROMINENT VOLUNTEERS.

M. DURUY, Ex-Minister of Public Instruction, has joined the Garde Mobile, and M. PAUL DE CASSAGNAC, editor of Le Pays, has entered a regiment of Zouaves.

THE APPREHENDED FAMINE.

The apprehension that famine would be added to the horrors of war in consequence of the late drouth, has been dissipated. The Gaulois has reports from eighty-one departments, which show that the wheat crops of 1870 will exceed the yearly average forty per cent.

A PORTFOLIO DECLINED.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—It is reported here that the Prince DE LA TOUR D'AUVERGNE will decline the portfolio of Foreign Affairs in the new French Cabinet because of ill health. He is about to return to France, and the Patrie also says he has already declined the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

THE BATTLE OF WOERTH.

McMahon's Official Report—The Prussian Losses—Opinions of the Battle—Napoleon's Generalship—The French Wounded and Prisoners.

PARIS, Aug. 12.—The journals of Metz published Marshal McMAHON'S report to the Emperor. The report says that the enemy, in greatly superior numbers, began the attack at 7 o'clock on Saturday morning. The first attack having been repulsed, about noon the enemy reopened the contest, throwing forward numerous sharp-shooters, protected by six guns in a commanding position. Masses of infantry were then brought up, and at 4 o'clock in the afternoon McMAHON was forced to order a retreat, which was effected in good order, the enemy's pursuit being without vigor, and by no means troublesome. The Marshal was able to send only a partial list of the killed and wounded.

PRUSSIAN LOSSES.

STUTTGART, Aug. 12.—In the battle of Woerth, the First Corps of the Wurtemberg contingent lost six officers and twenty-three men killed, 297 wounded and 119 missing.

PRUSSIAN CAPTURES.

At Gersweiller, the Wurtemberg troops captured one mitrailleuse, three cannon, one staff-carriage of the Fourth Division, 2,300 prisoners, and 500 horses.

THE SLAUGHTER.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—Prussian accounts say that nothing at Koniggratz could parallel the destruction of life at Woerth. The same accounts say it is believed NAPOLEON was on the field with McMAHON. This is reaffirmed in a later dispatch.

RUSSELL'S OPINION OF THE BATTLE.

RUSSELL writes to the Times that the French head-quarters were wholly ignorant of the details of the battle of Woerth. He was impressed with the belief that it was decisive, and important in its results.

M'MAHON ON SUNDAY.

McMAHON marched out of Saverne on Sunday night on the side of the town just as the Prussians were marching in on the other.

ANOTHER ATTACK ON NAPOLEON.

The Paris Page publishes a letter from CHARLES DESMOULINES, dated at Nancy, denouncing the Emperor's bad generalship. He says: "McMAHON, gallantly struggling, was broken for lack of support, though there were multitudes of armed Frenchmen at hand eager to save him. The point of the Rhine was undefended. The commissariat was utterly inadequate, and the soldiers were compelled to eat raw fruit and raw vegetables, and take the consequences. Prussia today has Alsace; to-morrow she will have Lorraine. The people are desperate; the soldiers believe themselves betrayed and clamor for a leader."

THE FRENCH WOUNDED.

BERLIN, Aug. 11—Midnight.—A party of French wounded just in are being forwarded to Spandau. Today 1,526 French officers and soldiers taken in Saturday's battle arrived here.

The Royal Family of France—Eugenie and Her Son in London—Contradictory Statements.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The nieces of the Empress have left Paris.

THE FRENCH EMPRESS IN LONDON.

The Echo asserts without qualification that the Empress EUGENIE and Prince Imperial are in lodgings at St. John's Wood. The Weekly Register has the same report, which, however, it gives with a caution to its readers not to place too much confidence in its correctness.

THE PRINCE IMPERIAL.

The Telegraph is authorized to contradict formally the report that the Prince Imperial is in London.

BERLIN.

A German Vessel Blown Up by a Torpedo—Gen. Sheridan at King William's Head-Quarters—The Queen of Prussia and the Wounded—Germany Early Prepared for the War.

BERLIN, Aug. 12.—A small vessel, which persisted in entering the Jahde on the Oldenburg coast, in spite of warnings of danger, ran against one of the torpedoes placed there to defend the harbor, and was blown up. Her crew were saved.

MOVEMENTS OF GEN. SHERIDAN.

Gen. P. H. SHERIDAN, of the American Army, has left Berlin for the King's head-quarters. Before his departure for the seat of war Gen. SHERIDAN, accompanied by an Adjutant, visited Gen. HORENFALDT at the War Office, where he was received with the attentions with which he has constantly been honored since his arrival in Germany.

PRUSSIAN CARE FOR THE WOUNDED.

BERLIN, Aug. 12, via LONDON.—The Queen of Prussia announces that she will take personal charge of the wounded of both nations, and that their treatment shall be identical.

FRENCH PRISONERS IN BERLIN.

The French prisoners, as they pass through the railway stations, receive nothing but kindness. Citizens and volunteers give them refreshments, cigars, &c., and ladies enter the cars, and going from man to man, offer them paper and pencil, and volunteer to write to their friends for them.

A SINGULAR STATEMENT.

PARIS, Aug. 12.—Among the German prisoners taken at the beginning of the campaign are members of the Landwehr who, were called into service six weeks ago. This proves that Prussia expected war before it was declared, and was not taken by surprise, as her Government has repeatedly asserted.

ARMY CORRESPONDENTS.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The Crown Prince promises to release all newspaper correspondents taken prisoners on the field.

THE NEUTRAL POWERS.

Another Secret Treaty Discovered—Why Russland Declined to Join Austria—Luxembourg—Rejoicings in Belgium.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The Cologne Gazette prints the outlines of another treaty proposed by Count BENEDETTI to BISMARCK in 1866. It stipulates that France shall take possession again of the territory acquired by Prussia in 1814, Prussia supporting France in the recovery of the left bank of the Rhine from Hesse and Bavaria; and that the guarantee given by the German Confederation in favor of the neutrality of Luxembourg and the Netherlands shall be annulled.

The Gazette adds that M. BENEDETTI represented that these proposals emanated from the Emperor at Vichy, in 1866.

AUSTRIA AND ENGLAND.

The Berlin correspondent of the Times writes that England has declined to join with Austria in the league proposed by von BEUST for guaranteeing the belligerents against loss of territory. England's reason for declining is that the league could not save the North German Confederacy in case Prussia should be defeated.

LUXEMBOURG NEUTRALITY.

Luxembourg having asked for a reaffirmation of her neutrality, the Powers reply that the existing guarantee is sufficient.

POPULAR DEMONSTRATION IN BRUSSELS.

At Brussels last night there was an enthusiastic popular demonstration before the Palace and the British Legation.

Experiments at Shoeburyness with mitrailleuses are said to have been splendidly successful. The Press gives a glowing account of the range and accuracy of the weapon.

The 400 pounds weight of bullion shipped from Bombay to London is on account of the abnormal condition of exchange brought about by the war.

TROUBLES IN LYONS FEARED.

PARIS, Aug. 12.—The workmen in the factories of Lyons threaten the German employes with violence, and trouble is apprehended.

French Meeting in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 12.—An enthusiastic meeting of French citizens was held in this city last evening, at which measures were taken to form a battalion of Frenchmen, and obtain transportation for it to France.

OPINIONS ON THE WAR.

The London Times on the Situation—Napoleon Sustained—M. Thiers on the Crisis—The Orleanist Organ.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The Times, this morning, says: "The pride of France is wounded and her prestige diminished. Who brought this on her must suffer for it. Victorious or discomfited is NAPOLEON's alternative on the next battle-field."

A FINE FOR NAPOLEON.

The Examiner this week says NAPOLEON adopts the course most worthy of his name, and of the gravity of the situation. Roused from indolent indecision by a stunning blow, he attains to the greatness of the situation. In the presence of peril unspeakable to himself, his family and the proud nation which so lately reinvested him with kingly power, laying aside conventionalities, he tells Prince her danger, and entreats her to the rescue, not for his sake, but for her own.

A FRENCH RETURNING SENTIMENT.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—M. THIERS is reported to have said that the Empire was ended, and a Republic inevitable.

THE ORLEANISTS SUSTAIN FRANCE.

PARIS, Aug. 12.—The Revue Des Deux Mondes (Orleanist) has a skillful article defending the attitude of France, and holding up Prussia to the execration of mankind.

Prussia Appeals to Europe—Prussia—France, the Friend of Mankind—Germany, Determined to Aid Against a Common Enemy.

In an article under the heading "France and Europe," the Manager Prussian-American of Aug. 9 follows out a line of thought peculiarly French in its nature, and which may not be without interest at present. It says:

"The Prussians have invaded France; the Prussians threaten Paris. It is the fitting time to proclaim our confidence in the destinies of the French nation; it is the time to protest against Moloch and their civilization of which the French nation is the most advanced representative. In the contest between France and Prussia the whole world understands that there are other questions involved besides a futile military rivalry, the question between the needle-gun and the Chassepot, and dynasties and the nationalities. It is generally understood that more than that, there is a more war of races. Why should the Teutonic and the Celtic race seek to destroy one another? Are they by nature hostile? Have they not been often brought together and amalgamated? Do they not both spring from the same Aryan stock? ... Is it not true that these nations have a common origin, belong to the same world, unite to forward the same civilization, ... that if Europe tends to unity, not to the absurd monarchical unity dreamt of by HENRY IV., LOUIS XIV. and NAPOLEON, but to that unity of life which results from the natural combination of organic tendencies? ... If Europe has a common life, if it has any organic unity, if it means anything, if it marches to a single goal, we must admit that France is at its head, ... France is the head, and Germany is the heart of Europe. Is there any shew of reason why these two nations should quarrel? Is there any reason why minute the other? Assuredly the reverse is true, and all nations await with terror the issue of this fearful struggle. But this struggle, where did it begin, and who was its real promoter? When France undertook a revolution within the century was she respected in the exchequer of her neighbors? Met a hostile if it; Europe united against her, and monarchical Germany made persistent efforts to smother the revolution. It was in self-defense that France became terrible, dictatorial, and at last imperial. This odious Government France gives to all her enemies united against her, but to her friends, and first of all to Prussia. She owes it chiefly to Prussia, which has become the most formidable European military Power and the fiercest enemy of the revolution. The instinctive hatred of France for Prussia is then perfectly explained. This hatred is not directed against great Germany; it is directed against Prussia, against military Prussia, against that Prussia which, by its Teutonic hegemony, seeks also the European hegemony. The capital of Europe at Berlin! What do you think of this? Shall humanity march backward toward the Rhine? No, never. It is humanity, it is the world, it is now in France against King WILLIAM. It is humanity which will arm all free men to defend the sacred soil of intelligence and of thought against the automatons of despotism. All Europe will understand that its honor is at stake, as well as its legitimate destiny, not to permit the submission of a single inch of French soil to Prussian influence."

In another column the same journal says: "The Germans in New-York propose holding a mass-meeting in order to celebrate the recent Prussian victory. In whatever way we look at it these terrible butcheries are a singular subject of rejoicings."

WAR MOVEMENTS.

The telegrams of this morning represent the calm before the coming storm. The limits of movements given are meagre and unimportant, and may be briefly summed up by the statements that if the number of fighting men which Prussia has in the field be not overstated, the contest as a trial of strength between two armies is simply decided; that the presence of a quarter of a million of men on the west side of the Vosges will, when backed by the enormous reserve still on the Rhine, press back the French not only to the Meuse, but to the Marne, and will at no distant date necessitate a final struggle near Châlons, which will be rather a gigantic shock between two nations than a battle; and that every fresh indication to hand of recent conflicts only prove a steadfast adhesion on the part of Prussia to the belief that Providence is on the side of the strongest battalions. The French proverb of qui s'excuse s'accuse finds illustration in the news of perfect accord existing between Marshal BAZAINE and his associated Generals, since, unless pains had been taken to mention the fact, nobody would have suspected the contrary. The oft-iterated announcement of the retreat of McMAHON from Saverne, and that of FAILLY from Strasbourg, having been effected in good order, leads us to infer that they have retreated much further than has been surmised, a fact which the necessity of contradicting the statement of the Prussians being at Nancy, renders still more probable. The concentration of the French at Metz simply represents a steady and resistless counter advance from the north and north-east by the Prussians, of which it may probably suit the official dispenser of the only real news to give us some further hints before long.

French National Subscription—About $12,000 Collected.

The French Executive Committee of this City, appointed for the purpose of collecting funds for the aid of wounded French soldiers, and for the support of the families of the fallen during the present war, held their regular weekly meeting at No. 21 West Houston-street on Thursday evening. The officers of the Committee: Messrs. P. A. GERDY, President; LEON MEUNIER, Secretary; and A. VATANEE, Jr., Treasurer were present, as were a number of the other members of the Committee. The principal business of the meeting was to hand over the funds collected by the members of the Committee to the Treasurer. The receipts of the latter during the past week and during last evening amounted to about $2,300, which sum, added to the amounts previously received, makes a total of about $12,000. It was resolved to send by the next Europe steamer a further $10,000 in gold to the banking-house of Messrs. ROTHSCHILD at Paris, whose head is the Treasurer of the French branch of the International Society to be distributed among the wounded French soldiers. It was resolved that the Executive Committee act as a General Committee of all similar French organizations in this country, and correspond with them with this view. It was also resolved, in answer to a request made, that the officers of the Committee should write a letter to Miss O. BOSSON, a French lady of this City, authorizing her to collect material for lint to be sent to France for the use of the wounded soldiers.

The Committee received a letter from Havana, Cuba, yesterday, dated Aug. 8, stating that at a French meeting held that day, $5,800 in gold had been subscribed for the French wounded of the war, the French Consul there, M. DE LA FORGEST, heading the list with $400.

The following is a list of subscription sin this City, in addition to that already published in the TIMES: Francis Cottenet, $800; a friend always generous, $250; Jury Leger, $200; employes of Delmonico's, corner Chambers-street and Broadway, $133; employes at Delmonico's, in Beaver-street, $102; S. Fougera, $100; C. Ludmann, $100; L. F. Dufourg, $100; A. Begeden, $100; F. A. Brugeire, $100; Dr. G. Mouraille, $100; Mr. and Mrs. Baillard, $50; L. F. de Figaniere, $100; F. Seligman, $100; V. Antoine, $100; F. G. Guimarães, $100; Henry Darbey & Co., $100; Ralph & Sander, $100; Elliot C. Cowdin & Co., $100; Barcelot & Vatable, $100; D. Wallenstein, $100; Picant, Simon & Carpel, $100; P. A. Renaud, $100; L. Maillard & Co., $100; Freutaut, $100; J. Reynal & Co., $100. Besides these there have been a large number of smaller amounts contributed.

Another Fatal Harvesage Explosion.

The Syracuse Standard of the 12th inst. says: We have one more case to add to the long list of deaths chargeable to carelessness, and to carelessness. The victim is a bright girl of 15, ANNA, daughter of Mrs. FRANCES WEBER, a widow lady, residing at No. 154 Park-street. Wednesday afternoon ANNA visited her brother-in-law, Mr. JACOB FRALICK, at No. 576 Lodi-street, and about 4 o'clock, in sore of help, she went to light the fire, pouring on kerosene to hasten its burning. And from pouring the oil on to the flame an explosion resulted, the burning oil flying over the girl, setting her clothes on fire, and burning her breast and body before aid could avail her. Medical aid was called, but the poor girl suffered on till about noon of Thursday, when she died.

COLLISION IN THE BAY.

The Coney Island Steamer Norwalk Run Into by a Schooner.

Terrible Close of a Day of Pleasure—Several Persons Knocked Overboard and Probably Drowned—Names of Some of the Injured.

A terrible disaster occurred in the harbor, last evening, by which several lives are supposed to have been lost. At about 7½, as the steamer Norwalk, which plies between this City and Coney Island, was coming up the bay at full speed, she came into violent collision, when opposite Red Hook, with a sloop, the name of which has not been ascertained. The port side of the Norwalk was penetrated, to a considerable distance, and her wheel carried away by the bow of the sloop. Such was the force of the collision that the sloop remained for some time wedged into the side of the Norwalk. The shock was terrific, causing both vessels to shake from stem to stern. There were several hundred passengers on board the Norwalk, and the excitement succeeding the collision was intense.

The ladies rushed from the cabins, shrieking with alarm. The deck hands tried to save themselves as best they could. Agonizing screams came from the ladies' cabin, and above the din and uproar were heard the shouts of the Captain of the boat. The collision was so unexpected that the passengers were, in many cases, seated on the bulwarks of the steamer. Two children on the forward part of the boat fell from their mothers' arms into the water. A number of others were precipitated into the water. It is probable that not less than eight lives were lost.

A tug-boat, whose Captain had seen the collision, soon came to the rescue. He succeeded in saving two of the drowning men. A hasty examination of the Norwalk showed that she had been seriously damaged, and that the water was pouring into her hold at a rapid rate. The passengers called out to the master of the tug, and notified him of their dangerous predicament. The tug attached itself to the Norwalk, and towed her toward the Atlantic Dock, Brooklyn. At the moment the wharf was reached a cry was raised that the Norwalk was going down. A frightful scene ensued. Men, women and children rushed for the plank, and trampled upon and crushed each other in their eagerness to get ashore. Hardly had the last man touched the dock and the tug been unloosed from the steamer than the latter went down. The utmost excitement prevailed in the neighborhood, and the cries of the passengers who missed friends and relatives were appalling. On account of the lateness of the hour at which information of the disaster reached the City, it was impossible to ascertain the names of the lost.

Another Account—Statement of the Captain of the Norwalk.

Last night the Coney Island steamer Norwalk, when returning on her last trip to New-York, with about 800 persons on board, was run into, off Red Hook, by a schooner, which struck her forward of the wheel on the larboard side, carrying away the bulwark and ripping up the deck. The effect produced upon the passengers was of the most exciting character. Women, children and men rushed around as if bereft of reason. Some of them, it is said, jumped overboard; the steward at least did so; but whether any person has been drowned or not, has yet to be ascertained. Mr. SHARKY, who was standing at the bar at the time, received injured about the head and had a rib broken. Mr. LAURENCE CLANCY is also injured in his head. Assistant Alderman DUFFY, of the Nineteenth Ward, and THOMAS CARROLL, keeper of Brevoort Hall, in Fifty-third street, are missing.

The Lady Helen took on board about 100 passengers off the steamer, and went into the Atlantic basin safely, but it was not known then that she had received serious injury and was sinking badly. The Norwalk made signals of distress, and the tug-boat Hussar, Capt. LEONARD KIPP, came out immediately and rendered immense service by taking in tow the Norwalk into Red Hook; it is said that she had three feet of water in her hold, and her pumps were going all the time. The cries of the passengers were heard distinctly by the Hamilton ferry boats, but no aid was sent although it was heard distinctly on the Howard. Complaints are loud against Capt. WILSON, as he had no lights on the steamer at that hour in the evening.

Upon whom the blame rests it is impossible yet to say. The commanders of the two vessels, of course, throw the blame upon each other.

Capt. WILSON, of the steamer, made the following statement: "We were off Bedloe's Island on our homeward trip, when we were run into by a schooner, the name of which I don't know. She went about right under our stern, and bounded up in the wind, struck us on the larboard side, forward of the wheel. We had about 800 passengers on board, none of whom, to my knowledge, went overboard, nor were any of them injured. Quite a number of them, however, jumped on board the schooner."

The damage done will be about $7,000. The owners of the steamer are GEORGE W. WILSON, JOSIAH L. LEWIS and A. A. ROSS. The statement of the pilot was to the same effect.

Despite these assurances of the officers the passengers persist in asserting that there must have been some lives lost. They say that several jumped into the water, of whom nothing has since been heard.

Twentieth Ward German Patriotic Aid Society.

A well-attended meeting of the Germans of the Twentieth Ward was held at No. 216 West Thirty-sixth-street, last evening, for the purpose of organizing a patriotic aid society of the Ward, with the view to including afterward the adjoining wards in the same organization, and to making it a general up-town association. Dr. LOUIS LEFFLER delivered an address, and stated that it was the intention of the German Society for Intellectual progress, of this City, to hand over the sum of $1,000 to the same, if ever it collected by them, for the aid of wounded German soldiers and the support of the families of the fallen. The following permanent officers of the Ward Society were elected: Messrs. EP. SCHLIGHTING, President; Dr. LEFFLER, Vice-President; A. FLATT, Secretary; REINHOLD SCHMIDT, Treasurer, and Dr. LEFFLER was also elected a delegate of the Society to the General Committee of the German Patriotic Aid Society of this City. It was resolved to have the ward canvassed in ten districts for subscriptions by an equal number of collectors, to be appointed by the officers of the Society, and to meet again on Thursday next.

Vacant Consulships.

The Washington Chronicle of the 10th inst. has the following:

"An examination of the list of vacancies in the Consular service at the State Department is said to show an aggregate of twenty-five or thirty vacant Consulships and positions as commercial agents, including a number to which appointments were made during the last session of Congress. Some of these vacant positions, with perhaps one or two exceptions, have salaries sufficient in amount to render them desirable, and the appointees, after learning of the fees and expenses of living at their posts, declined their positions or resigned, after holding the places for a few weeks, on discovering that their salaries would not meet their necessary expenses. In such case vacancies will continue to exist, unless persons can be found willing to pay for the honor of holding the positions."

POLITICAL.

THE SOUTHERN REPUBLICANS.

Address of Attorney-General Akerman in Washington—Review of the Political Situation—Rights, Equal and Absolute.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—A large audience assembled to-night at Lincoln Hall, to hear an address from Attorney-General AKERMAN. Many ladies and prominent gentlemen in official stations were also present. He commenced by saying the meeting was called by the Southern Republican Association of Washington, composed of citizens of that section sojourning here, whose object was to show sympathy and give aid to their political friends at home. He could not refuse to extend encouragement to men engaged in such a cause. The contest commenced in 1860, and having ended, so far as arms were concerned, the work of reconstruction and rehabilitation of the Southern States began.

THE SUBJECT OF CONTEST.

Two leading prominent doctrines were proposed by Congress:

First—The nationality of the American people represented in the Government at Washington, and not at the respective State capitals.

Second—That all inhabitants of the United States should stand legally upon the same footing of civil rights, without regard to race or color, and the odious familiar phrase, "race, color, or previous condition of servitude."

To a large portion of the people of the South these doctrines were unacceptable, being at variance with their prejudices and political creed, and failing in the halls of legislation, they staked the decision on the field of war, and are bound to accept the result. Mr. AKERMAN then analyzed the various elements of which the Republican Party was composed, and also those which enter into the Democratic organization—the latter including the majority who yield to the Secession movement.

THE ISSUES.

He could not agree to the proposition as made by some gentlemen that the time had arrived for new issues altogether. What might be supposed obsolete in one part of the country was living in another. He wished the proper representation of our American nationality were a settled thing, and wished the establishment and confirmation of equal rights to all men, except so far as they might forfeit them by their own acts. But just so long as persons are organized against these doctrines and endeavor to bring contempt upon those who believe in these doctrines, must we stand up to them energetically, and never let them go. They had heard of the "dead burying their dead." Will the doctrine of secession lie in its grave, where secession is supposed to lie dead? But do not bury the living as if they were dead, for to be buried alive is supposed to be a most terrible fate. So far as he knew, those who appear as leaders of the Democracy in the Northern States substantially concede that those rights are established; not so with the Democratic political leaders in the Southern States. With a few exceptions they have declared they will never submit to any other construction of the Constitution of the United States than that put upon it by the State rights advocates, and not as construed by MARSHALL, STORY, WEBSTER and JACKSON, who opposed the doctrine that fell by the swords of GRANT and SHERMAN.

ALEXANDER H. STEPHENS.

Mr. AKERMAN alluded to the views of ALEXANDER H. STEPHENS, as embodied in his book, which was in general circulation in the Southern States, the object of which publication was to show that secession and the reconstruction was monstrous. The speaker said there was such a thing as political supersaturation, and in this connection he commented upon the aphorisms of the author "that centralism is imperialism," in order to show its absurdity in the sense intended, remarking that the Government at the centre ought to be strong enough to sustain itself against all foreign and domestic foes. A Government not strong enough for such purposes is deserving of the contempt of mankind. He did not expect miraculous conversions; men do not readily yield their opinions. These can be changed only by line upon line, and precept upon precept. Bring them to the test of reason and see whether they are right. Bring them to the test of honor and see whether they are fair.

THE SLAVERY CHAMPIONS.

The Calhoun politicians are Southern champions of 1860 and 1861, who to want to war on the issue that had been decided from the former side would be an act equality with his master. Now that the people have decided the question, what becomes of their honor if they do not abide the result? He then alluded to the prediction made by (those same men. The people were reminded of the horrors of San Domingo, if there could be sudden emancipation. When slaves were transmuted to freemen, they held their breath and bolted their doors more carefully, and examined their fire-arms to see whether they were in order. They expected to be alarmed by the torch or the incendiary or the knife of the assassin. But none of these were applied; the knife was never drawn. The dwellings of the people were as safe as ever and their persons as secure. Men found they could leave their wives and children just as secure as they did in 1858. It was also said there would be a labor question, but it never came. They were also told that freedom would ruin the negro, and make business with with him intolerable.

THE SLAVE A VOTER.

In 1866 Congress conferred civil rights on the negro, and afterward the elective franchise and the right to hold office, which, in advance, were denounced as tending to ruin. The rivers ran to the ocean. Cotton and corn and wheat grew. Men, women and children go about without danger. So far as that class is concerned, the men who made these predictions could come to sow their seed, so long as it falls into the ground of prejudice. He distrusted those who are in co-operation with the soldiers. He would say that with the exception of a few outrages of an unusual character, perpetrated by certain lawless parties, there are few portions of the world where the masses of the people live in better comfort, and are in general better condition, than in the Southern States. It had been said that "a barsh Government is tramping down the people." He had seen the people in the towns and villages, and rural districts, and could give as his deliberate convictions that none enjoy greater comfort than the people of Georgia, and everywhere are signs of increased prosperity.

DIFFICULTIES.

There were difficulties in the way of the Republicans. First, they were confronted by deep-seated, unreasonable prejudice; second, a large majority of the wealth and political Press of the South is against them; and third, a very large proportion of the voters have been arrayed in arms against the doctrines Republicans oppose. It was hard for a soldier to give up the cause for which he fought, though some have done so. He wished the people could see these evils feeling and say it was not. They learned a useful lesson—and after the fight—to love the fair of their country and to extend their national sympathies from the Gulf to the lakes, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Mr. AKERMAN said Republicans were not without difficulty in their own ranks, were rebels adhering to their errors he regarded standards to which they had been subjected.

THE GEORGIA CONSTITUTION.

Among other things he remarked that the present Constitution of Georgia was framed in 1867 and 1868. It had been charged that the Convention was composed of negroes and carpet-baggers. The usual attendance was 181 members. Of these 79 were native of Georgia, 42 were native of other Southern States, making 121. Of the remainder 34 were born in foreign countries and 26 at the North. Of these 26, 14 were residents of Southern States prior to the war. And there were only about a dozen of what are called "carpet-baggers" in that body.

MISGOVERNMENT.

The public had been told much about the Government in Georgia. If there had been misgovernment it does not virtually affect the property of the people. In some of the Southern States the legislative bodies have acted far in providing for the future before provided for the present, and in pledging the public credit unwisely. He also alluded to the fact that while the Republicans were blamed for patronizing the so-called "carpet-baggers," the Democrats had done the same thing when it suited their interests. He compared the Democrats objected more to what was in the carpet-bag than to the carpet-bagger himself.

POLITICAL CAPACITY OF SOUTHERN REPUBLICANS.

Mr. AKERMAN concluded by defending the the Republicans of the South from the charge of political incapacity, referring particularly to the legislation of the Confederate Congress, which wrecked the cause of the rebellion, and as to the carpet-baggers, it was known that there were men in that Congress assuming to represent States, on the territory of which they were not allowed to tread—the States or part of the States from which they came being in possession of Union troops.

Mr. ACKERMAN was frequently interrupted by applause.

THE POLITICAL CAMPAIGN.

What the Republicans Are Expected to Do—The Secession Conspiracies.

From Harper's Weekly.

The Republican Party in New-York will hold its Convention for the nomination of Governor in September, and its own condition and the selection of the country seems a plain and emphatic declaration of principles, and the most vigorous and harmonious action. This will be the most important election before the next Presidential campaign, and, although it will not determine the position of New-York in that campaign, it will be an immense encouragement or discouragement to the party throughout the country. It is, therefore, essential that the Convention fully understand the situation, and its first consideration should be that it must address itself to actual questions. The war is over. Reconstruction is accomplished. The Democratic Party, which perplexed and prolonged the war, has not, indeed, acquiesced in the result. That result not be for protest. And if the party should choose to contest the Presidential election of 1872 upon the ground of a refusal to acknowledge the validity of the amendments, and of a resolution to reopen the whole subject of reconstruction, it would be as overwhelmingly defeated as it was in 1868 upon a platform of surrender to the rebellion, or in 1868 upon that of repudiation and rebel sympathy.

But although the folly of that party seems to be exhaustion, it is not expedient to take it for granted. A wise General credits his antagonist with sagacity that his own victory may be more and more splendid. The Republican Party in the Republican Party has saved the Union, in favor of the Union, that it has reconstructed it upon the principles of justice, and has confirmed its great work by constitutional amendments. It knows, also, that the party will defend its own work. But it does not seriously believe that the Democratic Party will attempt to disturb the settlement, and the public attention is, therefore, fixed upon other points. Perhaps the most immediately pressing and engrossing question is that of the financial policy. What is the Republican principle on this subject?

Take one aspect of it—that of taxation. The country is heavily taxed. Taxes must necessarily continue to be heavy for a long time. But upon what principle shall they be laid? Shall the country be taxed now to pay the debt, or shall the burden be shared with those who follow us? In other words, shall taxation be reduced?

It is a proof that during the year and a half of Gen. GRANT'S Administration, the decrease of the public debt has been $104,125,724 61. Meanwhile, also, Congress has somewhat reduced taxation. But is the Administration stronger, is the continued ascendency of the party secured by these facts? And if not, what is the reason? Is it not that the policy of reduction is not believed to be a general and acknowledged party policy? The division upon the tariff, the action upon the income tax, the declaration of leading Republican journals that the burden ought to be temporarily borne, showed plainly enough that the reduction was rather a chance than a policy. Upon such a subject at this time, no party can hope to succeed if it has not a distinct and declared principle. It cannot shuffle and evade. Shuffling is confusion. Evasion is defeat. It must pronounce plainly, as the opposition will, for a reduction of taxes or against it.

It is further desirable that this be done, because, after the action of Congress upon the President's proposition to buy foreign ships, every candidate for the House must satisfy his constituents as to his views of a true revenue system. A great party cannot have two opinions upon that subject when the subject is of issues upon which depending important legislation is useless to say that the Democratic party also has no unanimity upon that point, because we ought not to depend upon the folly of the enemy. Their action may be no wiser than ours. But they have the immense advantage of professing only; they cannot be tried, as we are, by practice. Every faithful Republican wishes to be just to the general patriotic purpose of the late House of Representatives. But every Republican knows that, in the reaction sure to follow, as the proceedings and results of the last session, must doubt whether, upon the whole, its action was an advantage to the party. It is conceded on every side that the Democratic Party will largely increase its force in the next House. And what was the reason of the discord of that session, and of the party disasters? Let the with its results? It is very plain. It is that the House was dealing with questions for the consideration of which it was not elected. Consequently its last act was the extraordinary one to which we recently alluded as so significant. It refused to approve the recommendation of the President to enable the country to take a proper advantage of the opportunity opened by the war in Europe.

Now, the Republican majority in the next House will be smaller, and it, upon so vital a subject as the general financial policy of the country, it has no opinion, or has two very positive opinions, the Democratic minority will control legislation, and the Republican Administration will be paralyzed. We cannot expect, if that should be the case, that the country, in 1872, will support a party which doesn't know what it thinks upon the gravest public questions. It does not seem to us possible to avoid the necessity of plain speech in the party platform. It certainly will be necessary for Congressional candidates who hope to be elected. And the party leaders should have learned that of all policies timidity and obscurity are the worst. When the rebellion was thundering at the Government and country, the Republican Party did not falter. It called a rebel, rebel; and a Copperhead, Copperhead. It laid heavy taxes; it decreed a draft; it abolished slavery. No party ever did a greater work more gloriously.

All this is not to be forgotten. On the contrary, it is to be perpetually remembered, but remembered for inspiration

THE NATHAN INQUEST.

The Investigation by the Coroner Suspended.

Not a Ray of Light Yet Thrown Upon the Mysterious Affair—Dr. Beach's Theory of the Murder—The Victim Thought to Have Been Dragged Into the Library After Death—A Line of Unimportant Testimony.

The inquest in the Nathan case was concluded for the present, at least, yesterday, before Coroner Rollins. The attendance was large and the interest unabated. The first witness called was LEVI J. ISAACS, undertaker, who described the position of Mr. NATHAN'S body, as he saw it on the morning of the murder; he said it was covered with blood.

WM. H. CARR, of the Fifth-avenue Hotel, also described the position of the body, as he saw it soon after the discovery of the murder. Both he and the preceding witness testified that a light was burning in the room where the body lay, and their testimony coincided in other respects.

Dr. JOHN BEACH, Deputy Coroner, gave a detailed description of the body of Mr. NATHAN, with the wounds thereon, as it appeared when he was called to see it at 2 P. M. of the day of the murder. There were nine distinct wounds on the head—four on the forehead (one of which penetrated the brain) and on the side of the head, and four on the back of the head. The unusual position of the body led the witness to believe that it had been removed after death, from the precise spot where it expired, and placed in the peculiar position in which it was found. His opinion was that Mr. NATHAN was lying on his face when he expired and was afterward turned over and the limbs disposed as when discovered. He was fully satisfied that all the wounds were inflicted by the "dog" found on the premises. He believed that the murder might have been committed by one person, but that it could not have been done without leaving blood-stains on the clothes of the murderer. If the light was burning in the room and the position of the blinds and screen of the front window was as testified by those who first saw them after the murder, witness was of opinion that the persons committing the murder might have been seen from the opposite side of the street, or from the Fifth-avenue Hotel, with sufficient distinctness to designate whether it was a man or woman. In answer to a question from the foreman of the jury, Dr. BEACH gave his theory of the murder to be this: That it was committed by a burglar, who first got the keys to the safe from Mr. NATHAN'S pocket, and opened the safe without making any noise; that in the attempt to pull a tin box from the safe a noise was created, which awoke Mr. NATHAN, who crept toward the door in which the safe was, probably in a stooping posture; that as he entered the small room a blow was dealt him on the head, which stunned him, and perhaps knocked him down, and that the other blows were inflicted while he was down and continued as long as he showed signs of animation sufficient to give the alarm, and that the robbery of the safe and of the clothes of Mr. NATHAN were subsequently pursued by the burglar at his leisure. The large number of blows inflicted did not, in his opinion, necessarily indicate personal hate or desire for vengeance on the part of the murderer, but rather anxiety to make death sure, so as to prevent his victim from giving an alarm.

At the close of Dr. BEACH'S testimony, Coroner ROLLINS addressed the jury, briefly referring to the evidence already taken and in acknowledgment of the assistance he had received from Superintendent JOURNEE and other officials, and proposing, if the jury thought best, that the inquest should now adjourn without day, and in case any new evidence turned up that they should be called together. The jury acquiesced in this proposal and the inquest was accordingly adjourned sine die.

Readers who have attentively perused the evidence thus far given on the inquest, will have noticed that many of the questions propounded to the witnesses implied that evidence was in possession of the authorities which they have not seen fit as yet to bring before the public, in the shape of sworn testimony. Thus, in the examination of young KELLY, the housekeeper's son, he was several times asked whether he did not leave Mr. NATHAN'S house on the morning of the murder, and was absent an hour or more, during which time he rode to some place in a horse-car; and to each question he answered positively that he did not. Then, again, yesterday each witness was asked whether the form of a man or woman might not be seen in the room where the safe was, from the opposite side of Twenty-third-street, in case the light was burning, as sworn to by all the witnesses. These and many other questions on which the Assistant District-Attorney seemed to lay great stress simply that there is other testimony in the hands of the authorities which has not yet been brought before the public. It is, doubtless, to afford opportunity to perfect the chain of evidence, thus indicated that the inquest was adjourned over without day.

The Nathan Inquest—Sixth Day—Detailed Report of Yesterday's Proceedings—Testimony of Levi J. Isaacs, William H. Carr and Doctor John Beach—Indefinite Postponement of the Investigation.

The inquest in the Nathan murder case was resumed yesterday morning at 10½ o'clock in the Supreme Court, General Term, before Coroner ROLLINS.

The first witness called was Mr. LEVI J. ISAACS, the undertaker who prepared the body of Mr. NATHAN for burial.

Discovered the body of Mr. NATHAN lying on the back with the hands elevated to the angle of about two-thirds from the position, (indicating) the hands firmly clasped, the right arm in about the position, (raised above the head.) the right hand was considerably contracted, which led me to suppose that the wrist had been dislocated; the first finger and the middle finger were fractured; the injury to the second finger was not so severe; upon the third finger the skin was denuded; the rest of the hand was untouched; a wound was inflicted on the right side of the thumb; the head thrown slightly to the left; the left angle of the mouth was more open than to the right, so much so that a tooth whose stump had worn out or decayed was very visible; the left limb was partly resting against the side of the door, the foot rather inclined toward the right limb, which lay over on it; the left knee was drawn up; the hands were firmly clasped, the right arm in about the position, (raised above the head.) the right hand was considerably contracted, which led me to suppose that the wrist had been dislocated; the first finger and the middle finger were fractured; the injury to the second finger was not so severe; upon the third finger the skin was denuded; the rest of the hand was untouched; a wound was inflicted on the right side of the thumb; the head thrown slightly to the left; the left angle of the mouth was more open than to the right, so much so that a tooth whose stump had worn out or decayed was very visible; the left limb was partly resting against the side of the door, the foot rather inclined toward the right limb, which lay over on it; the left knee was drawn up; the hands

CRIMES AND CASUALTIES.

Shoplifting and Swindling Pals, and Other Mishaps.

Mrs. JANE WILLARD, of No. 89 Bond-street, charged the arrest of CHARLES WARREN, alias Tom. King, a confidence man, who had stolen her silk dress, valued at $25. When arraigned before Justice HOGAN, at the Tombs, Mrs. WILLARD stated that the prisoner had admitted the theft; and he was held for trial, in default of bail.

PETER LOSE was arraigned before Justice HOGAN, yesterday, to answer a charge of having stolen the sum of $40 from GEO. D. TRUSTON, of No. 16 Water-street. The money had been left in a desk, and the accused was seen to run out of the store, the theft being soon after discovered. When LOSE was arrested, he was found in possession of the stolen money, so the Magistrate held him to answer.

JOHN DENNIS, the individual who incurred a bill of $87 50 in luxurious living at the New-York Hotel, without having means of paying it, was arraigned before Justice SHANDLEY, at the Jefferson Market Police Court, yesterday. On examination it came out that Dennis came to the hotel on the 9th of August, where he remained as a guest, boarding and lodging to the best style the house afforded, and ordering wine and cigars, until Thursday evening, when he was arrested for debtors at the Hotel by Justice SHANDLEY committed him for examination.

LEWIS DAVIS, a hale girl of questionable morals, aged twenty-two, a British blonde, residing at No. 229 Wooster-street, confessed at Jefferson Market Police Court, yesterday, to having stolen a watch and chain worth $60 from JOHN BAIRNS, of No. 60 West Washington-street. Officer Wilson, of the Mercer-street Station, arrested and induced him to accompany her to No. 25, where they remained but ten minutes. After leaving BAIRNSS missed his watch and had Lucy arrested yesterday morning and brought before Justice SHANDLEY, who, on her pleading guilty, committed her for examination. Complainant recovered his property.

BERTHA DIEDERICH, a servant girl in the employ of FRANCIS X. HERRICK, at No. 254 Ninth-avenue, was arraigned before Justice SHANDLEY, at Jefferson Market Police Court, yesterday, on a charge of grand larceny. She left the house last Monday, and absented herself, taking a bundle of Government bonds which were pledged deposited giving her $72 for that purpose. She did not return, and after her departure property valued at $61 was missed. She was arrested on Thursday evening with part of the goods in her possession, and was yesterday committed for examination.

THOMAS STRATLE, of No. 195 Thompson-street, came before Justice SHANDLEY, of the Jefferson Market Police Court, yesterday, and charged JOHN REILLY with having stolen from him, on the 12th of August, $12 in money. The prisoner was committed.

JOHN HALSEY, of No. 463 Broome-street, appeared at the Jefferson Market Police Court, yesterday, and stated that his stove had been broken into some time ago, and 600 yards of hatters' plush, valued at $1,200, taken therefrom. His salesman, JAMES VAN NAME, informed him that the goods were found in the possession of FRANCIS WEBB, who had offered them for sale. The accused admitted he bought them, on the 4th of August, from a man named WHITE, paying him $630. WEBB's statement was so disjointed and unsatisfactory that Justice SHANDLEY committed him for examination, on the complaint of Mr. HALSEY, who believes that the prisoner feloniously received the property knowing it to have been stolen.

A. B. MARTINEZ and ANTHONY FAREY were brought before United States Commissioner SHIPMAN, yesterday, charged with attempting to sell a lot of cigars without the proper stamps. Two of Col. WHITELY's detectives were examined in the matter, and further inquiry will be had today at noon. The accused have been held in $500 bail each.

On Thursday afternoon BARNEY DE CARP and PETER CURRAN, garbage men, called at the residence of HENRY WALKER, No. 146 Fifth-avenue, and while the servant was gone upstairs to get the money to pay them for taking away the garbage, they took from the room silver ware worth $150, which they deposited in a vacant lot. The theft was not discovered until after they had left. Yesterday both men were arrested by Detective TIERNEY, of the Central Police, and, being arraigned before Justice HOGAN, were committed for examination.

HENRY BLOOMFIELD, a negro steward on the revenue cutter McCullough, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detective CLARK, of the Central Police, on a charge of stealing a gold watch from HENRY BROCKMANN, a sailor on the cutter. Foreign Reputation Rewarded "A Medal Given to a Seaman for Saving a Man's Life.

The following letter from ELLWOOD WALTER, President of the Life-Saving Benevolent Association, to Capt. CHAS. A. HAMLET, Jr., of the ship Surprise, explains itself:

THE LIFE-SAVING BENEVOLENT ASSOCIATION OF NEW-YORK, NO. 61 WALL-STREET, NEW-YORK, AUG. 1, 1870.

Capt. Charles A. Hamlet, Jr.:

DEAR SIR: It affords me pleasure to transmit herewith the gold medal awarded to you by the Life-Saving Benevolent Association of New-York. The inscription, you will observe, is as follows:

"Presented to CHARLES A. HAMLET, Master of the ship Surprise, in recognition of his humanity and resolute and successful efforts to save the life of WILLIAM A. JOY, aged fourteen years, who fell from aloft into the ocean at midnight, during a gale of wind, on a voyage from New-York to China, the 19th day of January, 1870."

The Association recognizes your "skilful seamanship" as evidenced by the acts of shortening sail, wearing ship twice, and heaving to within forty-five minutes of a dangerous sea in said ocean, which rendered the rescue the best by possible.

But we desire especially to commemorate the humane impulse which induced these efforts under circumstances so discouraging. Most men would prefer to let the boy go down with the waves. The remaining three shots were subsequently fired at a freight car by Mr. SCHMELZER.

The jury rendered a verdict of justifiable homicide, though they were in doubt which of the two men fired the fatal bullet. Detective SMITH is endeavoring to secure the arrest of the parties, who have so long troubled the railroad dock.

Still Further Advance in the Price of Ice.

The ice companies yesterday raised the price of ice from $15 to $20 per ton by the wholesale, and at retail from 12½ cents per pound to 2 cents. Orders have been given to the ice-cart drivers not to sell less than 25 cents worth to families, which is almost a virtual shutting off entirely of that class of consumers, and to them it is a serious matter. The consumers of all grades are loud in their denunciation of this movement. It is said there is to be formed a mutual protection ice company for operations next Summer, to insure the obtaining of ice at a reasonable rate.

Falling off in Immigration.

There has been a marked decrease, during the past two or three weeks, in the number of immigrants who usually swarm into Castle Garden, in consequence of the present war in Europe. The decrease has been especially noticeable among the Germans, who have heretofore formed the bulk of the immigrants brought to this port. Those Germans who are now arriving in this country took passage on board the Liverpool vessels, instead of the Hamburg and Bremen steamers, which are prevented from sailing by fear of the French naval vessels. The following figures show the number of German and French immigrants which landed at New-York during the Spring and Summer months of last year, as compared with the same period this year:

	Germans.		French.
	1869.	1870.	1869.	1870.
April	9,454	9,256	250	220
May	14,270	16,370	290	280
June	12,718	12,225	260	212
July	9,027	7,422	221	163

There were 3,926 German immigrants and 110 French immigrants brought to this port during the first two weeks of August, 1869, while the present month, so far, has only witnessed the arrival of 1,738 Germans and 69 Frenchmen.

The Flynn Habeas Corpus Case—Decision Reserved.

In the matter of JESSIE FLYNN, already reported at considerable length in our columns, the counsel for the relator closed his argument yesterday. There was Counselor WHITE said, no testimony in the case tending to show that there was any difference of a serious character in respect to the religious faith of the husband and wife. The testimony showed that JOHN FLYNN, the father, was married to his wife according to the rites and ceremonies of the Protestant Episcopal Church. After some further recapitulation of the evidence by counsel, the announcement was made by the Presiding Judge that he would take the papers and reserve his decision.

Church-Street Extension.

The extension of Church street has been almost completed, and abroad way takes the place of the narrow thoroughfare previously existing. As yet the street has not been paved, nor has the extension been completed as far as Vesey-street, but the former defect will be remedied shortly. The new street is lined with handsome and well-built stores.

New-Jersey Thieves Caught.

During the month of July, several heavy robberies occurred in Englewood, N. J., despite the precautions of the wonderful Vigilance Committee that controls the criminal matters of the town. The store of Mr. S. S. PARSAMUS was robbed, early in the month, of $1,800 worth of goods, and later, on the night of the 20th ult., the store of Mr. W. W. BROWN was robbed of about $1,200 worth of clothing and furnishing goods. Two brothers named BURKE, one of whom, it is said, has been an inmate of the Ohio State Prison, were recently arrested in Newark on suspicion of having been concerned in other burglaries, and a search of their house at Union Hill revealed a portion of the goods stolen at Englewood. One of the brothers, EDWIN BURKE, has also been identified as the man who entered BROWN's store on the day before the robbery, and examined some goods without purchasing.

Incendiarism in Brooklyn.

On the 10th of June last the store of J. F. WEBBER, No. 183 Fulton-street, was set on fire, the authorities and insurance companies believed, by an incendiary. The insurance on the building was $27,000. The firemen on entering it found on the second floor 100 straw mattresses cut apart and saturated with kerosene, as if prepared to kindle the conflagration. In the neighborhood of the place was found a man named WILLIAM WEBB, with his leg broken, the accident having been occasioned, he said, by a fall from an extension of the building, upon which he had mounted to see the fire. His story was not deemed probable by the policemen who took charge of him. On being examined, a box of matches and a taper were found in his possession. It was also learned in a few days after, that he was a friend of WEBBER, and interested to a certain extent in the stock of the concern. Since that time he has been held under bail, and yesterday the case came up for hearing before Justice WALSH.

First-Grade Assistant Counsel for the people and counselor BRITTON for the defendant. The evidence will be closed today.

POLICE AFFAIRS.

A Crowd of Delinquents Arraigned—Singular Charge and Counter-charge—Action of the Board of Police.

Another large calendar of Police cases yesterday, required the joint efforts of Commissioners BOSWORTH and BRENNAN, sitting in separate rooms to dispose of it in a reasonable time. The complaints, which brought eighty patrolmen in Police Head-quarters to answer them, emanated from the grand roundsman running the streets in citizen's dress, seeking for derelictions. A patrolman, one was that of Patrolman ARTHUR TWIGG, of the Ninth Precinct, who was charged by Roundsman BELLEW with standing in conversation with a citizen for twenty-five minutes, while on patrol duty. TWIGG stated that a citizen jumped off a passing horse-car, and began talking to him of some depredations in the Ninth Precinct, and, while talking, BELLEW came up and ordered him to move on. The citizen was walking beside him, and continuing to talk. He denied that he had conversed at all with the citizen, and claimed that BELLEW had refused to hear him for anything like the time stated. Both Mayor's Marshal FUNCK and Sergeant STEWART testified that it was he who arrested Grand Roundsman MOGAVIN, when he was found seemingly intoxicated in the street, and since then MOGAVIN has mostly proclaimed that he will get a chance against him to break him and secure a change against him to break him and secure an adjournment to enable him to bring forward witnesses to prove the charge. MOGAVIN stated that he had said anything of this kind, but the charge being just then considered by reference to the Board, BELLEW was found at the door of the Chatham-square station-house in conversation with the complainant, who appeared to have been engaged in attempting to revenge.

A number of patrolmen of the Eighteenth Precinct were arraigned for neglect of duty in not visiting their places of residence to guarding private residences, the occupants of which had escaped to the country, and several of which have been entered by burglars and robbed; one, the residence of Hon. A. J. ROGERS, in East-seventy-second-street, and another, in Lexington-avenue, near Twenty-second-street. In the former case, the window covering these posts during the time they must have been absent, admitted they did not try the doors, and the same were noticed to be open.

At a meeting of the Board of Police held yesterday afternoon, the resignation of Mr. P. DICKSON, of the Third Precinct, to take effect on the 15th instant, was received and being accepted, the rule as to age was waived, and Capt. DICKSON was appointed to the detective force, of which he was formerly a valuable member. Sergt. ISAIO W. POTTER, of the Twenty-Eighth Precinct, was retained in possession of his position, and Grand Roundsman GEORGE M. DAVIDSON, of the Eighteenth Precinct, was appointed Acting Sergeant and assigned to the Twenty-Eighth Precinct. Dr. JOHN O. SWAIN was appointed Surgeon of the Tenth District.

Death of a Well-Known Broker.

Mr. STOUT, the senior partner of the well-known firm of Stout & Dickerson, broker, died yesterday morning. A meeting of the New-York Stock Exchange was held in the afternoon to adopt the customary resolutions of respect to the deceased, who was one of the best known and most respected brokers on the street. The New-York Stock Exchange ordered the flag to be kept at half mast until after the funeral.

FRIDAY, AUG. 12—P. M.

In the absence of exciting War news, and on the strength of the heavy short sales of Gold day before yesterday, the Gold Room again advanced today, making 117¾@117¾ ⅌ cent. before 3 o'clock. At a later hour, when it was reported that the shipments by the steamers of Saturday would carry out $1,800,000, the price further advanced to 118¼ ⅌ cent. The Foreign Exchanges were firm, and 60 day Bills in demand at 109¾@109¾ ⅌ cent. Short Sight 110¼@110¾ ⅌ cent. We have reason to suppose that the shipments of Gold on Saturday are not exaggerated by the informal reports this Afternoon, although it is difficult to arrive at details in advance of the sailing of the steamers. The market for Gold showed much firmness after Bank hours, the absence of further battle news being construed as less favorable to Prussia and as a prolongation of the War.

Money was in easy supply, at 4@5 ⅌ cent. on call loan, while borrowers are ready to pay 6@7 ⅌ cent. on 30@60 days' time.

The Stock Exchange was fairly active in the Public Funds, and the State Bonds, at steady prices, contrasted with the business of yesterday, while in the railways the speculation was somewhat spiritless in the favorite stocks of Wednesday and Thursday, such as New-York Central, Lake Shore and Wabash. The North-west are well supported on the favorable turn in the traffic of the line, which shows a gain of $15,000 in two days of the second week in August, in addition to the gain of $30,000 the first week.

After the Stock Boards broke up, the following quotations were made in the Long Room, and on Broad-street, as compared with Thursday night. Gold and Exchange were firm; the Public Funds steady; the Railways generally dullish.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE WAR.

The Bavarian Army is reported to have passed through the Vosges, and to have bivouacked on Friday night at Domeringen, near Saar-louis. The German forces between Rastadt and Coloeme are said to number 750,000 men. Two hundred and fifty thousand Prussian soldiers are now in Lorraine. An Antwerp dispatch states that a great battle is momentarily expected. The position of Strasbourg is a weak one. Poorly defended and provisioned, its early capture is regarded as probable. Advices from Metz are to the effect that the best of feeling exists between BAZAINE and the other Generals. The French Army is concentrated around the city, but is retarded in its movements by the rainy weather. The retreat of MCMAHON and FAILLY, it is again announced, has been made in good order. The reported occupation of Nancy by the Prussians is denied. Gen. SHERIDAN has left Berlin for King WILLIAM'S head-quarters. The Queen of Prussia has announced that she will take personal care of the wounded of both nations, and that their treatment shall be identical. Those of the French are said to be most kindly treated as they pass through Berlin. A small vessel in endeavoring, yesterday, to enter the Jahde on the Oldenburg coast, in spite of the danger signals, ran on a torpedo and was blown up; the crew were saved. The official report of MCMAHON to the Emperor, of the recent battles, is given in our dispatches, but no new light is thrown upon the subject. The Prussian attacking force is again represented to have been vastly superior. The slaughter at Woerth, it is said, was without parallel. It is again reported that NAPOLEON was on the field with MCMAHON. On Sunday night MCMAHON marched out of Saverne at one side while the Prussians entered on the other. CHARLES DEMOULINS has written a letter from Nancy, in which the generalship of NAPOLEON is severely criticised. A party of the French wounded arrived at Berlin yesterday and were forwarded to Spandau; and on Friday 2,268 French officers and soldiers arrived at Berlin as prisoners. Among the German prisoners taken at the beginning of the war are members of the Landwehr, called into service six weeks ago. This fact is thought to be conclusive that Prussia was expecting and prepared for war before it was declared. The Department of Haute Garonne has been declared under martial law. Preparations for the formation of companies of the National Guard are being made in the various Departments. The fears of famine are dispelled, as most favorable reports have been received from all quarters in reference to the crops. M. THIERS is reported to have said that the Empire was ended and a republic was inevitable. The Prince DE LA TOUR D'AUVERGNE will, it is said, decline the portfolio of Foreign Affairs in the new Cabinet on account of ill health.

The nieces of the Empress are reported to have left Paris. Two London journals assert that EUGENIE and the Prince Imperial are occupying lodgings in St. John's Wood. The Telegraph authoritatively denies that the Prince is in London. The Examiner contains a highly complimentary article upon NAPOLEON, in which it says that "he has already adopted the course worthy of his name and the gravity of the situation." The Duke of CHARTRES has asked permission to serve in the French Army. The Revue des Deux, (Orleanist,) in an article yesterday, defends the attitude of France and blames Prussia for the war. An enthusiastic demonstration was made in Brussels on Friday night, before the palace of the British Legation. The existing guarantee of the neutrality of Luxembourg is deemed sufficient. The reason assigned for England's refusal to join Austria in the league proposed for guaranteeing the belligerents against loss of territory, is that the North German Confederacy could not be saved in case Prussia was defeated.

GENERAL EUROPEAN NEWS.

The Orange anniversary passed off quietly, yesterday, at Enniskillen, Ireland, where trouble was anticipated. Londonderry was also quiet.....The text of the Naturalization treaty between Great Britain and America, was published in London, yesterday.....FOLEY'S model for the statue of STONEWALL JACKSON has been completed, and is ready for the foundry.....A manifesto has been issued in Madrid by the leaders of the Republican Party, demanding the convocation of the Cortes.

GENERAL.

Major B. B. FRENCH, of Washington, D. C., long a resident of that city, and prominently identified with the Masonic fraternity, died yesterday morning, aged seventy years.

PHILIP R. MEYZ, a banker of Pittsburg, committed suicide, yesterday morning, in that city. In a letter addressed to his wife the deceased stated that financial troubles prompted the deed.

The steam pleasure-boat Grace Irving, with a party of fifty on board, struck a rock off Fort Washington, in Boston Harbor, on Thursday and sank almost immediately. Fortunately, all on board were safely transferred to another steamer before she went down.

The Swedenborgian Convention, composed of representatives of the churches in Maine and New-Hampshire, assembled in Portland, Me., yesterday. The annual report shows that a successful work has been performed during the past year.

The Ottawa Citizen, Government organ of the Dominion, denies that any application has been made for amnesty toward those concerned in the Red River troubles. Should such clemency be granted, it adds, those concerned in the murder of SCOTT will be specially excepted.

The grand masquerade ball at the White Sulphur Springs, on Thursday night, given for the benefit of the needy sufferers by the late railway accident, was successful. About 300 persons were in attendance, and several hundred dollars were raised for the object in view.

A very large and brilliant meteor passed over Concord, N. H., on Thursday night, at 9¾ o'clock. Its course was from the south-west to the north-east, and, arriving at the latter point, it exploded with a loud report.

The editors of Vermont held their annual meeting at Burlington, yesterday. An address was delivered by E. E. BRIGGS, of that city, and a poem by A. A. HARLE, of Boston. An excursion on the lake is to be enjoyed today.

Attorney-General AKERMAN made an address last night in Lincoln Hall, Washington, to the Southern Republicans.

YELLOW EAGLE, a brother of Red CLOUD, the Sioux Chief, was thrown from a mule about July 16, and killed.

The report of the Court of Inquiry into the treatment of the colored cadet at West Point, has been made to the Secretary of War. It recommends that SMITH and the offending cadet be tried by Court-martial, the testimony of SMITH himself not sustaining the representations in his published letter. The Secretary of War caused GILMORE and SMITH, who were recommended to be court-martialed, to be reprimanded.

Advices received at the Indian Bureau represent the Indians, generally, under the influence of RED CLOUD and others of the Sioux Chiefs who visited Washington, as assembling for a grand council with a view to peace.

Hon. WILLIAM H. SEWARD arrived in Chicago last evening, and will remain in that city several days.

CRITTENDEN'S jewelry store, at Cleveland, Ohio, was robbed in the modern manner yesterday. Two men entered the establishment at noon, and while one was engaged in looking at some silver, the other crawled under the counter and abstracted diamonds valued at $3,000. Both made their escape.

A Chicago dispatch states that a rumor is in circulation in that city that the portfolio of Secretary of State has been tendered to Hon. LYMAN TRUMBULL.

In the Georgia Senate yesterday the resolutions favoring prolongation were defeated by nine votes—yeas 62, nays 71. Attorney-General AKERMAN has written a letter to Col. FARROW and others, taking strong grounds against prolongation. A new election this Fall is now regarded probable.

The steamer Norwalk, plying between this City and Coney Island, while on her homeward trip last evening was run into by a schooner and several passengers knocked overboard. She was towed to the Atlantic Dock, Brooklyn, in a sinking condition.

Yesterday was the first day of the second Summer Race Meeting at Saratoga. There were three races. Enquirer won the McKenna Stakes, Nannie Douglas the Summer Handicap, and Lady Patty the $400 purse.

The Working Men's Central Union, of this City, held a meeting last night, at which resolutions were passed condemning the course of the Democratic Party, and indorsing the Administration of President GRANT.

The Harvard College Base-Ball Club played a game with the Atlantics, of Brooklyn, on the Capitoline Grounds, yesterday, and was beaten by a score of 12 to 4.

Paris and the Crisis.

The destinies of France are once more in the hands of the capital. A crisis has arisen without a parallel, since that of 1789, and Paris is now, as it was then, as it was, too, in 1830 and in 1848, the arbiter of the nation's fate. The Legislative Assembly is, to be sure, in session, and may at any time vote itself the supreme power of the realm; but now that the National Guard, which, strictly speaking, is simply the nation armed, has been appealed to, the power of disposing of events has in fact become vested in the people, in whom by right it resides. Let Paris rise and pronounce for a republic, and who can say that Marseilles and Lyons, Rouen and Lille, would not follow her lead, as they have done heretofore, or that the millions of French rural population will not accept, as hitherto, what the great cities decree? Whatever is, is right with the French peasantry, and they will indorse a Republic to-morrow as faithfully as they indorsed the Empire a few months ago, if only they have some tangible evidence that the one has been substituted for the other. The armed populace of Paris is, therefore, master of the situation; and let but the first fugitive from a great defeat in the valley of the Marne tell that the last bulwark between the invader and the gates of the capital has fallen, and it will deal as summarily with NAPOLEON III. as it dealt with CHARLES X. and LOUIS PHILIPPE. Already the National Guard has begun to murmur against the soldiery which charges the mob in Paris instead of charging the enemy at the front, and should these same soldiers return, dejected and mutinous, from a disastrous campaign, they will fraternize with the people as they have done in former times of trial, and will aid in overturning the Empire as gayly as they went to fight for it.

To any one conversant with the temper of the Parisian population, the prospects of an Orleanist restoration, now so freely canvassed, are in the last degree absurd. Much as M. THIERS has done to merit the admiration of the world, he is, in the politics of today, merely a species of fossil. The party he represents numbers in its ranks much of the intellect and culture, as well as not a little of the wealth of modern France. But the mass of the people never did understand "the monarchy surrounded by republican institutions" which was voted in by the Chamber of Deputies in 1830, and contemptuously cast aside by the Republicans of Paris in 1848. What the Emperor ALEXANDER I. said of LOUIS PHILIPPE may be safely said of his grandson, the Count of PARIS, that he has a very unique characteristic for a Bourbon prince—a liberal turn of mind; but amiable and accomplished as he is, he responds neither to the traditions nor to the hopes of Frenchmen. He is neither the rightful heir of the ancient monarchy, nor the child of the victorious First Empire; his title would be a creation of the people, and yet would aspire to claim a share of the "right divine;" once elected he would seem to be above the power that elected him, and the first time that the people hungered, and the Government was unable to feed them, LOUIS PHILIPPE there seems to be a growing disposition in the Democratic Party to illustrate itself. As yet the tariff and finance questions have not become open issues, and it is doubtful if they will become so even in time for the canvass of 1872. The Republican Party and the Administration stand, therefore, before the people upon their general records. We have the practical results of the last ten years to offer as a guarantee of future action, and therewith the people must be content. In other words, the party is on trial for what it has done, quite as much as for what it proposes to do, and the result of the November election will show whether the people are willing to accept proper securities for the future by putting the Republicans of this State in power.

It would seem as though such a splendid record as the Republican Party has made since 1860, and especially such tangible points of economy and retrenchment as have been presented to the country by President GRANT, ought to be a sufficient assurance as to the future, especially when we consider the worse than fabulous record of the Democratic Party during the same period. If we could be certain of even an approximately honest canvass, there would be no question that the voice of the people would be found in favor of the party and the Administration, and it only remains for the Republican managers to secure such an election by enforcing the laws.

Effect of the War on Emigration.

The disastrous effect of the war upon German emigration is already felt at the West. Other nationalities contribute mainly to the numerical growth of our cities; the vast body of Germans, on the other hand, proceed directly to the West, and contribute by their industry and thrift to the rapid development of that section. Some of the States owe to them much of that diversified industry which is among the notable incidents of Western growth, and all the States welcome them as precursors of wealth and prosperity. For years past the efforts to induce emigration on an organized basis have been directed to various parts of Germany, and plans of improvement have been predicated upon the continued influx of population from that quarter. By checking this class of emigration, therefore, the war becomes a positive calamity to the West. The derangement of financial schemes which it entails is of less importance than the sudden stoppage of a stream of population which has carried with it the solid wealth of industry. The story of Michigan, as told by the Detroit Post, could be confirmed, perhaps elaborated, by Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri and Kansas:

"A stream of German immigration, under the wise policy inaugurated by Gov. BALDWIN, was just beginning to flow into this State when the war broke out and put a stop to it. We had already announced German colonies intended to settle in Saginaw, Grand Traverse, Newaygo, Gratiot, Isabella, Mecosta and other counties. Some of these projected colonies promised to add directly several new branches of manufacture and commerce to the State. One of them was to be composed of wood-cutters from the Black Forest, who had made preliminary arrangements for contracts to supply the German railroads with ties and other timber from the oak forests of Michigan, at a fair profit to themselves, and so as to give their boats a direct commerce with Europe through the Welland Canal and the River St. Lawrence. The prospects were that a large business of this kind would soon grow up. Another colony of experienced vineyard men and wine manufacturers was projected, intending to settle on some of our lake islands on the main land, in favorable locations. These colonies proposed to bring to this state large sums of money to invest in canals. Other colonies were projected to furnish laborers for our new railroad lines."

The immediate loss of men and money from this cause will be severely felt by the entire West. In many districts, growth will be seriously retarded, and in all, the absence of the accustomed accessions to population will go far toward counteracting the gain derived from the enhanced price of breadstuffs.

The check will be but temporary, however. With the return of peace will come the old facilities for emigration, and greatly augmented incentives to it. Whether Prussia or France be in the end the conqueror, nothing is more certain than that both will emerge from the conflict with sad evidences of its devastating power. Both will be poorer,—both for a time crippled and embarrassed. The destruction of property, the prostration of industry, the disorganization of commerce, will be recovered from very slowly. The waste of war will be followed by augmented debt and taxation. The disposition to seek relief in emigration will naturally be stronger than ever. When that period arrives, the United States will realize the substantial profits of emigration from Continental Europe on a scale greater than ever before known.

Railroad Infanticide.

The vast number of railroad casualties which find almost daily record in the columns of the City Press, imperatively calls for protest against the reckless indifference to public safety manifested by a majority of the companies. Whether it be in catastrophes such as occurred in Virginia last Saturday, when twelve persons were instantaneously hurried into eternity, and a large number injured, or, in the less appalling, but also less incomputable, cases of individual loss of life, which so frequently occur without eliciting more than passing comment, the charge of neglect is equally well sustained. A train goes over an embankment, or runs off the line, and straightway a broken rail, or an imperfectly guarded curve, is quietly assumed to be the cause. But that to run trains over unsound rails is, morally speaking, a more criminal act than to discharge loaded fire-arms down a crowded street, or that to leave dangerous portions of the line insecurely fenced, is to deliberately permit the existence of conditions endangering human life, are facts to which companies and coroners alike seem, as a rule, to be comfortably indifferent. The rail was over-worn, and the accident is satisfactorily accounted for. And we hear nothing of any effort to punish the party or parties through whose carelessness, or refusal to expend the necessary funds, the loss of life has occurred.

We do not, however, direct our remarks so much to that class of disasters, which is of sufficient magnitude to be deemed a "shocking catastrophe," and to furnish whole columns of exceptional sensationalism to the persons as to the minor accidents in which individuals alone are the sufferers, their lamentable misfortunes being recorded as a mere "item" of State or county news. Under such a heading, how often do we read that some unfortunate man "was struck by the up train on such and such a line and instantly killed," or that some poor woman "was caught by the cow-catcher of the down express, and so fearfully injured that her recovery is impossible." In a vast majority of these cases—especially when women are the victims—the accident would have been prevented had but a slight guard existed to separate the public highway from the rails. Doubtless it may be urged that adults are presumed to have a fair conception of the danger they incur in crossing, or proceeding along, a line of railroad without previously satisfying themselves that they run no risk from advancing trains. But no such argument applies to children, although, owing to circumstances, many do unquestionably acquire unusual precocity in this respect. They keep out of danger generally speaking, because they are told to do so, and not from any conception of the conditions which render an approaching engine so much more dangerous than an ordinary horse-car. It is on behalf of the little ones, so many of whose number furnish annual victims to the steam Juggernaut, that we protest against the culpable negligence which permits steam-cars to traverse public thoroughfares, thronged with children of all ages, without the slightest attempt on the part of the railroad companies to provide the most simple safeguard against fatal accident. That our legislation is to blame for permitting this state of affairs, does not in the least decrease the heavy responsibility which rests on the owners of the lines. The voices of hundreds of bereaved parents cry aloud against this cruel neglect. It is a very common remark, that the companies would rather run the risk of a few accidents than be troubled with putting up fencing. This would be all very well if the directors or their servants were the sufferers when an accident occurs. But it unfortunately happens that the blow falls upon the heart-broken mother, and grief-stricken father, while the Company escapes even passing censure, if it can be shown that the engineers and brake-men of a train have acted with reasonable promptitude to endeavor to check the engine before it reaches its victim.

Nothing would, of course, be more absurd than to advocate the adoption in this country of the inclosure system of Great Britain and Continental Europe. The vast length of our lines of railroad preclude either the need or the possibility of enforcing it. But in the immediate vicinity of depots, in the streets of country towns, and in the yet more crowded thoroughfares upon the outskirts of cities, some simple protection against such accidents is demanded by common humanity. Nor would the expense thus entailed be any serious charge upon the revenues of the lines. A slight fencing of wood or iron some three feet in height would amply suffice for the purpose of keeping off children, while it would also save many a poor woman from the fearful consequences of her ignorance or inexperience. The millowner who neglects to place proper guards over dangerous parts of his machinery is justly liable to fine and public condemnation, and there is no reason why owners of the yet more dangerous railroad should be exempted from a similar penalty. Those who have suffered, or whose families are exposed to danger, by the absence of such precautions, feel very deeply on the matter, and any legislation having for its object a reform in this direction would meet with considerable support. The railroad companies would of course oppose it; but in this case the profits of the few should be compelled to give way to the safety of the many.

Marriage in the Depths.

Observant people will have noticed of late years a growing disposition among marrying people to have the wedding ceremony performed in unusual places. Perhaps the tendency is an outcropping of the uneasy craving for novelty which marks the modern spirit. Perhaps it is only another evidence of that widespread reluctance to marry at all, which statisticians tell us is characteristic of the age, and which, when overcome, still shows itself in this fastidiousness with regard to place. Time was when two fond hearts were content to be united at the nearest church, or even amid the commonplace surroundings of the bride's home. But nowadays we have changed all that. We have had people married on horse-back and in small boats, married on opposite banks of a river, and in the railroad cars, until all these devices grew tame and prosaic. Then an ingenious pair hit upon the happy expedient of being married in a balloon, and now even their fame bids fair to be eclipsed by that of the twain who were lately made one flesh in the romantic recesses of the Mammoth Cave.

Western papers are enthusiastic over an event which so delightfully "varied the humdrum monotony of ordinary affairs," and grow eloquent in their praises of the "elegant cave costumes" in which the bride and her attendants were arrayed. Nearly one hundred guests—self-invited—witnessed the entertainment, and, for some mysterious reason, "as the minister concluded his invocation for a divine blessing upon the newly-wedded couple, all involuntarily drew a breath of relief." Why, however, a wedding should have impressed them so uncommonly like an execution we are not told. After the performance was over, the bridal party went on a brief tour through the cave, "while the others returned to the hotel to discuss the romantic taste which led to the selection of such a spot for the ceremony."

It is impossible to discover any good taste in these proceedings, and doubtless for that reason they will be widely followed. We may expect to hear before long of weddings celebrated in the most inconceivable places; but when all the eligible places are used up, when there remains no spot above or under the earth where one can safely get married with the blissful consciousness of a new celebrity, what are unhappy lovers to do? The most ardent declaration of affection will be met by despair, and mankind will probably lapse into universal celibacy, from lack of sufficiently novel holes and corners to get married in. Seriously speaking, the tendency is one to be regretted. It is an outbreak and development of the same vulgar sensationalism which makes marriage, in what is called fashionable society, seem an undesirable thing, unless it can be celebrated in sight of all the world. A bride with us is made just as much of a public show as though she were some rare marvel, duly labeled, and put on exhibition in the museum; and so idle throngs press to the ceremony precisely as they would to the circus. When people enter in such a spirit upon the gravest and holiest responsibilities of life, it is not surprising that the essence of the contract should come to be viewed in the same light as its incidents, and be as little respected accordingly.

"Respondent to Dr. Carnochan."

The extraordinary proceedings taken by Dr. CARNOCHAN in reference to the seizure of the Weesle, ought not to be allowed to pass without inquiry. This vessel was provided with a clean bill of health, and Dr. REID, one of the Health Officer's assistants, directed the master to take the Weesle to Perth Amboy and discharge her cargo. The Health Officer at Perth Amboy furnished the master with another clean bill of health. In short, every proper rule and regulation of the port was complied with, and it is expressly stated that Dr. CARNOCHAN gave the requisite permission for the vessel to anchor. But at midnight on Thursday a body of twenty armed men "boarded the Weesle, with pistols and axes in hand, overpowered and took the Captain prisoner, together with his wife and children and two watchmen, who were the only persons on the vessel, and subsequently cut the hawsers, after which she was removed to some place unknown to her owners."

As a buccaneering enterprise, this exploit would probably be simply a matter of passing curiosity. But it ought to be clearly understood, at once, how far Dr. CARNOCHAN is privileged to set up a code of laws of his own, and employ armed men to execute them. A journal which is the habitual advocate of Dr. CARNOCHAN tells us that "the Captain and owners of the vessel were impudent" to the Health Officer. This is indeed a very heinous offense, and we cannot condemn it with sufficient severity. But it may be questioned whether the mode of punishment adopted is justified either by the law or by considerations of prudence. The forcible seizure of a vessel under the circumstances described, is an act which calls for some explanation. Dr. CARNOCHAN unfortunately appears to labor under the delusion that if he can get a few lines inserted in one of the morning papers, he can afford to set public opinion at defiance. He will probably find out his mistake in a very unpleasant manner before long. We advocated his appointment, but we were not aware that he contemplated all sorts of violent and extravagant proceedings for the sake of increasing his fees. The least that can be done now is to issue a notice warning all ship-owners and captains coming to this port not to be impudent to Dr. CARNOCHAN. At present they may not understand the perils they encounter by neglecting this new law. It appears to be quite certain that Dr. CARNOCHAN assumes the right of seizing any vessel which happens to have avoided paying his fees. It is very necessary that the higher authorities should look carefully into the latest instance of his eccentric behavior.

The Sun very properly points out that the "special dispatches" of which the Tribune boasts so loudly "belong to an association known as the Associated Press." When any of these dispatches are used by other journals, they are paid for at their full value, and are not, as the Tribune would lead the public to believe, purloined. The Tribune asked us the other day whether we would give an order to the Associated Press agent not to deliver its dispatches to us. The answer to this is that the dispatches received by every journal are sent round to all the other journals in pursuance of a standing regulation, which we have no more power to alter than the Tribune, or any other member of the Associated Press. We wish it to be distinctly understood, however, that from first to last we printed less than a dozen lines of these Tribune dispatches, not regarding them as of any value or importance whatever. If the Commercial Advertiser refers to us when it says that some people use the dispatches and then "belittle them," it does not know what it is talking about. We decline to print fanatical opinions as news, and if the Tribune can or will stop these dispatches coming to us, we are very willing that it should do so. They have not hitherto contained a word of news which the Associated Press has not reported much more fully and accurately, and therefore we are satisfied to depend on a competent instead of an incompetent agency. It will be understood, then, that when the Tribune asserts that we use its dispatches, it asserts what is contrary to the truth.

The Ohio Republicans send forth no uncertain sound upon the questions at issue between revenue reformers and ultra protectionists. Admitting the necessity of Customs duties to meet the wants of the Government, the Columbus Convention insists that the duties shall be "so adjusted as to be least prejudicial to the industrial and producing interests of every class or section of the whole country." That is the true doctrine: equality of benefit from taxation,—not exceptional benefit, which is monopoly. Even more emphatic is the resolution adopted by the Convention in reference to the Navigation laws. A change is demanded that should render practicable the registration of vessels purchased abroad: it is urged as required by the best interests of the country, and as calculated to "again give to our plundered commerce the supremacy of the seas." This may be rather a strong way of stating the case, but it indicates the force of the popular conviction upon the subject, and is a rebuke to the obstinacy of Congress in resisting the suggestion of the President. We hope that similar expressions of Republican opinion will be heard in every State in which an election is to be held this Fall.

An enterprise which was looked forward to with much interest—the annual International exhibition of 1871 at London—will almost inevitably be abandoned. Neither France nor Prussia can spare time for anything but the great struggle in which they are engaged, nor is any other Power likely, in view of possible contingencies, to devote much attention to an international exhibition. Thus, war not only arrests the world's material and industrial progress, and in a few weeks, or even days, destroys the work of a generation. In what other direction this tendency will be manifested remains to be seen, but it is hardly too much to say that the destruction already wrought must leave its mark upon the world for years to come. If the contest continue for any length of time, not half a century will suffice to repair the injury and losses inflicted upon the great mass of the people.

The special correspondents of all the papers—for they all have correspondents, notwithstanding wild statements to the contrary—are having an unusually hard time of it. If the military authorities lay hold of them they are liable to be shot—if the populace catches them, they run a very good chance of being hanged as spies. The choice between these two alternatives is so little inviting, that some of the correspondents have concluded to terminate their labors at once, and their arrival is reported in Paris. Nevertheless a few will, we trust, manage to find some opportunity of discharging their duties, for if we depended for information on "official sources," we should be left with very little to guide us. Neither the Prussians nor the French appear to have made any return yet of the losses experienced in the recent battles. The silence of the French may be partially accounted for, but it seems strange that the Prussians have not let the world know how much their victories cost them.

An appeal to the silk manufacturers of the United States on behalf of California silk culture, gives evidence of the magnitude which that particular branch of industry may assume. The great obstacle to the production and growth of the silk-worm in other States is the scarcity of mulberry trees, upon which alone it thrives. California possesses these in almost every portion of the State, and the silk besides is longer and of tougher fibre than that of any other country. China and Japan receive annually over two hundred millions of dollars for their production, and the writer of the appeal asks, naturally enough, why California should not in time be enabled to secure at least half of this amount. Certainly, the subject is one of very great importance, involving as it does not only the prospect of enormous profits, but the employment of thousands of people of both sexes, young and old.

The Canadian papers were jubilant recently over the supposed discovery that our Government had located the canal across the St. Clair flats on the Canadian side of the boundary line. The canal was surveyed by members of the United States Engineer Corps, and over half a million of dollars has already been expended upon it. It became a matter of considerable interest, therefore, to know whether the work was to fall to the exclusive benefit of the Canadians or not. Gen. CRAM, Resident Engineer at Detroit, raised this question several years ago, and the result was that the line of the canal has been carefully re-examined, and has been found to be altogether within United States jurisdiction.

Building Up the Waste Places—An Appeal to the Charitable.

The following appeal, which has been lately issued, sufficiently explains its own object:

To the Members of the Episcopal Church, and all other Friends of Religion and Education in the United States.

June 11, 1864, without an engagement the town of Darien, Ga., was attacked by the United States colored troops, Col. SHAW, Fifty-fourth Massachusetts Regiment, commanding. The destruction of the place was more nearly complete than that of Atlanta, including the public academy and the church edifice of St. Andrew's Parish.

At the close of the war, the people of the community returned to the site of their former homes, after years of exile, and commenced, apparently relentlessly, to rebuild. They have striven hard, unaided, and against adverse circumstances, to restore their broken fortunes, and to establish, once more, the cause of religion and education in their midst. The Vestry of St. Andrew's have resolved, as a parish, and have pledged a sufficient salary to obtain a competent teacher of a parish school, to be free to all those unable to pay for tuition. They have resolved to rebuild the church edifice, a school-house and a rectory. The slender resources of the people of the parish have been thus heavily taxed. They have responded promptly to the full extent of their means.

But two thousand dollars more are still needed to accomplish the work. In the absence of a public school for white children, many are growing up without the advantages of an education, who are too poor to pay for them. Under these circumstances, the appeal is made by the members of St. Andrew's Church, alike to the generosity of their church brethren and to that of the charitable of every creed for assistance.

ROBERT F. CLUTE, Rector.
W. ROBERT GIGNILLIAT,
Senior Warden.

Remittances either to the rector or senior warden, at Darien, Ga., or to Right Rev. JOHN W. BECK-WITH, Bishop of Georgia, Macon, Ga., stating object, will be gratefully acknowledged.

A Romance at Washington—Elopement of Government Clerks—Spiritualism and True Love.

The Washington Republican, of the 11th inst., says: "The dullness of the local news market was relieved yesterday by a sensation in the shape of an elopement—a foolish girl running away from a happy home and a mother's and sister's love to share the fortunes of a stranger, who was objectionable, we hear, to the lady's friends for several reasons. The parties to the elopement were W. H. B. EKESON, a clerk in the War Department, appointed from New-York, somewhat over thirty years of age, and Miss MINNIE RUTCH, who has been employed as a clerk in the Internal Revenue Bureau, aged twenty years, good looking and attractive. Miss RUTCH'S mother and three sisters reside on Massachusetts-avenue, near Thirteenth-street. EKESON is a Spiritualist, and believes in mesmerism and all the other isms of the day. He was introduced to Mrs. RUTCH'S family by a Mrs. ENSON, and was received as a welcome visitor for a time, when bad habits were developed, and he was forbidden the house. It was evident, however, before this that an affection had developed between EKESON and Miss MINNIE. Mrs. RUTCH and her sisters deeply deplored, expostulated, expostulated with Miss MINNIE on her conduct, but she refused to listen, although it was shown that EKESON had previously bestowed his affections elsewhere. It seems that he was engaged to a young lady residing in New-York, and he never informed the latter of his new flame until he had Miss MINNIE'S affections thoroughly engaged. Being forbidden the house, as above stated, he made appointments with and met Miss MINNIE on the street and in the Treasury building. At this time EKESON was succeeding fully poisoning the girl's mind against her family, until she informed her mother and sisters, on one occasion, that she did not care anything for them, and that she was determined to marry EKESON. Meanwhile EKESON had, upon some pretext or other, broken his engagement with his New-York flame. At least he so stated. Mrs. RUTCH, finding that she could not prevail with her daughter, sent for a brother who was living in the West, but his influence was powerless also. The girl was devoted to EKESON, and have him she would. This course of conduct at last culminated in an elopement. It is not yet certain that the parties have been married, as the record of the license has not yet been found. The last interview between Mrs. RUTCH and her daughter took place on Tuesday morning, when the two walked together to the Treasury. The mother saw her daughter enter the Treasury building and subsequently returned home. In the evening Mrs. RUTCH received a small package containing a door key and inclosing a letter, of which the following is a copy, and which it will be perceived is signed by the runaway as MINNIE EKESON, and not MINNIE RUTCH:

The promise I meant to give today has just been given. I cannot now take on cards that I am not married. I shall never return home.

AUG. 11, 1870. MINNIE EKESON.

The girl took no clothing with her except what was upon her back, and upon searching her room all her effects were found there except three bracelets. Mrs. RUTCH visited the Treasury Department yesterday, and ascertained that MINNIE remained at her desk until the afternoon, when she asked for and obtained leave of absence for one day, and since then none of her friends have seen or heard anything of her; and EKESON disappeared from his desk in the War Department about the same time.

Another part of the dairy contains, under date of March 5, 1867, an entry of twenty names, and the route traveled up to Aug. 22, 1867, from Horseman Boulder to Deer Creek, after which the book must have fallen into the hands of the Sioux. THE COLORED CADET CASE.

Report of the Court of Inquiry—Recommendation to Court-Martial Smith and the Offending Cadets—Sentence Changed to a Reprimand.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—The report of the Court of Inquiry which was appointed to investigate the complaints of the colored cadet at West Point, has been received at the War Department. The Court finds that the statements of the colored cadet, as contained in his letter as recently published, are not in the main correct; that he had been subjected to some ill-treatment, however, has been proven by the evidence, and the Court recommends that both the colored cadet and the white cadet in fault, both be tried by a Court-martial. They also found that all the officers and academical authorities treated the cadet, who makes the complaint which led to the inquiry, with the same consideration with which the others are treated, and that they did everything in their power to prevent misdemeanors. Secretary BELKNAP disposed of the case by ordering Cadets GILMORE and SMITH, who were recommended to be tried by Court-martial, to be reprimanded by the Superintendent, taking this course with the belief, based upon the opinion of the Court of Inquiry, that no further irregularities of the kind will occur, at the same time assuring the cadets that if these reasonable expectations of the Department are not responded to, that the offenders in future will be dealt with in a very summary manner.

Operations of the Post-Office Department Last Year—Attorney-General Akerman's Address to Southern Republicans—Miscellaneous.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Some progress has been made in the Post-office Department with the preparation of the statistics concerning the postal service for the last fiscal year. While the results are necessarily incomplete, enough is known to make it certain that the Department will be able to make a creditable financial showing. The deficits will certainly fall below those of the previous year, and the expenditures will fall within the appropriations, notwithstanding a very considerable extension of mail facilities in the South and West by the establishment of new offices, which are necessarily at first a tax upon the revenues of the Department. During the fiscal year ending on the 30th of June last, the number of post-offices has been increased by 1,402, and there are now in operation 1,766 more offices than were in existence at the beginning of the present Administration, although during this period 968 offices have been discontinued. The greater part of the new offices are in the South, but some of the Western States show a rapid increase. The largest number established in any one State during the past year was in Kansas, which showed an increase of 200.

MR. AKERMAN TO THE SOUTHERN REPUBLICANS.

Lincoln Hall was about one-fourth filled tonight to listen to Attorney-General AKERMAN's address to the Southern Republicans. Mr. AKERMAN's speech was closely argumentative, and directed mainly to questions which principally interest the South. He discussed at some length the positions assumed by ALEXANDER H. STEPHENS, in his recently-published book, classifying Mr. STEPHENS' ideas with those held by CALHOUN, and characterizing him as a superannuated politician. Among those who were present listening to the delivery of this address were Gens. SHERMAN and HOWARD, Senator SPRAGUE, with many heads of Bureaus and holders of subordinate positions under the Government.

LABOR AND CAPITAL.

The Mule-Spinners' Strike at Fall River—An Appeal to the Public.

A correspondent of the Boston Post, writing from Fall River on the 11th inst., gives the following particulars of the mule-spinners' strike in that city:

"Three weeks ago the mule-spinners employed in the various cotton mills of this city struck work on account of a reduction in their wages, which they deemed unjust. Their strike threw the weavers, card-room hands and other employes out of work, and today 7,000 or 8,000 operatives are 'on the streets,' besides 1,600 or 1,800 who have left town to seek employment elsewhere. The City of Fall River is noted the country over for its immense production of cotton goods—almost wholly print cloths—no less than twenty mills running over half a million of spindles and 12,000 looms being occupied with this manufacture, producing upward of 100,000,000 yards per annum, and giving employment to probably 10,000 operatives in the various departments. These are, by name, the Fall River, Troy, Ocequechan, Pocasset, Annawan, Massasoit, Metacomet, Fall River Print Works, Watuppa, American Linen Company's Union, Granite, Tecumseh, Robeson, Durfee, Doubt, Hope, Davol, Merchants and Mechanics' Mills. Of these, the Troy, the oldest of the corporations, and which ordinarily runs about 40,000 spindles and about 1,000 looms, employing over 800 hands, is now running from one-quarter to one-third its machinery, and the Davol, which runs about 1,400 spindles and 900 looms, employing about 500 hands, is in full operation. Aside from these not a spindle whirls or loom vibrates in all these vast and massive factories. On the 29th of June the mill-owners notified their hands of a reduction in their wages to take effect on the 6th, and in some mills on the 1st of July, those of the spinners being cut down about seven and a half per cent, and those of the weavers exactly ten per cent. The weavers manifested no disposition to refuse working at the reduced rate, but the mule spinners, being the only class of operatives with a trades union—the Mule Spinners' Operative Association—at once met and prepared the following memorial, which was on the following day presented to the agent of each mill:

SIR: We, the spinners in your employ, do most respectfully desire that you will take into consideration our present rate of wages, together with the high rents and other necessaries of life, and the reduction you have now offered to us, which will make it almost impossible for us to support ourselves and families. Again, sir, we think the merits of the mule spinner are not properly understood. Take, for instance, the length of time he must devote to acquire a practical knowledge of his trade, and the small pay he receives during all those long years of weary toil. Take any other trade outside the mill, and see if they have devoted the same number of years to learning their trade, and whether we are on a par with them in any respect. Or take any other branch of industry in the mill, and see if they commence on the same pay, or devote the same time to learning their trade as we do. Sir, you must admit that we have some grounds for complaint. Then, in conclusion, we hope that you will take into consideration your offered reduction, as we think it unjust and unreasonable, and as such, we cannot quietly submit to it. The bearer of this requires an immediate answer.

THE SPINNERS IN YOUR EMPLOY.

SPINNERS' ASSOCIATION ROOM, FALL RIVER, June 30, 1870. [Seal.]

To this reply was made by the masters that they could do nothing for them at this time, when, on the 7th of July, the following conclusive missive fell on the mule-spinners:

SIR: We, the spinners in your employ, having considered your answer to our memorial, stating that you can do nothing for us at this time, we as a body are unanimous that the state of the markets does not warrant us great a reduction as now offered to us.

We believe that the question in dispute can be more amicably settled if you will condescend to appoint five of your number to meet an equal number of spinners and discuss the matter with them, and if you can prove to us that there is a just cause for the reduction, we are willing to submit to it.

At a general meeting of the spinners of this city, held in Bay State Hall on the 2d of July, 1870, it was unanimously resolved that we ask you to give a one-third of the reduction back or take this memorial as two weeks' notice.

The bearers of this memorial will receive any communication emanating from you on the question.

Respectfully yours,
THE SPINNERS IN YOUR EMPLOY.

SPINNERS' ASSOCIATION ROOM, FALL RIVER, July 7, 1870. [Seal.]

No answer being given to this, the spinners gave notice that they should "turn out" in two weeks unless the full prices heretofore paid were continued. Of course the latter alternative would have necessitated a complete backing down on the part of the proprietors, to which they would not assent, and accordingly, on the 21st July the spinners left the mills, and the other operatives, being all dependent on them for work, left also.

Since the men have been on strike, their Executive Committee has held daily sessions in the rooms of the Association, in a wooden building on Main-street, near Bedford. They manifest a complete willingness to make public a statement of their side of the matter, which, they assert, is based on resistance to an unjust attempt of the manufacturers to crush them for their advocacy of, and their labors and expenditures for, the Ten-hour bill last Winter. They express a determination to fight the thing through, believing that in the end they will be able to obtain at least the old rates, either here or elsewhere. They assert that there was no necessity for the cut-down, cotton having fallen at least 1 cent on a pound, and print cloths risen 1 cent on a yard, within a few weeks—both circumstances being in favor of the manufacturer.

In furtherance of their objects, the Committee have issued the following:

AN APPEAL

To the Factory Operatives and Working People in Country:

Fellow working men and women, we appeal to you for sympathy and support, hoping you will assist us in struggling against a reduction in our wages of 10. We ought to be paid the present. Said reduction we consider to be unjust and uncalled for at the present time, knowing that we are already paid below the average price paid in all New-England previous to the reduction. Having used all the available means in our power to obtain an amicable adjustment of our grievances before resorting to any rash course, and being treated with silent contempt, we were compelled to take the step we have. There is not a manufacturing town, city, or hamlet in all New-England where the factory people have to work as hard as they do in Fall River. Yellow-workingmen, it is well understood that the factory people in Fall River have labored hard for the last two years for an effective ten-hour law for women and children; the result of which is fresh in all your memories. Our employers, knowing this, retaliated on us by imposing this reduction on our labor. We appeal to you to defend us in our efforts to continue our agitation of the ten-hour law, knowing as we do that the present state of the markets does not justify the said reduction. Fellow-workingmen, we now appeal to your sympathies and support, we have given up our wives and children, while fighting the battle of right against might. Subscriptions will be thankfully received for the above object, or our notes will be taken to receive donations. The delegates appointed to take up subscriptions will have books bearing the signature of the Association. All contributions coming through any other channel will be disowned.

THE LAST COLLIERY ACCIDENT.

Further Particulars of the Pottsville Horror—Several More Killed and Wounded by Injured.

The Pottsville correspondent of the Philadelphia Bulletin gives the following additional particulars of the shocking colliery accident which occurred there on the 10th inst.:

The scene was the New-Philadelphia Gate Vein Colliery of Hein & Glassmire, formerly Gay & Ellwood, at Port-Carbon, Schuylkill, five miles east of this place. It was about ½ P. M., and the men, who had quit work for the day, were being hoisted to the surface by means of the cage used to raise and lower the coal cars, when suddenly a portion of the hoisting machinery gave way. The ascending cage, which was then about 225 feet from the bottom of the mine, stopped, fell back, stopped again for an instant, and then went rushing down with its living freight into the black depths from which it had just risen. At the bottom of the shaft is the "sump" or reservoir, which collects the drainage of the mine, containing at this time five or six feet of water, and into this went cage and men, while nearly 400 feet of wire rope was hurled down on them. The men at the bottom hastened to the relief of their companions, but found themselves almost powerless to aid them. Three were rescued in a dying condition. One, after three or four efforts, succeeded in freeing himself from the superincumbent rope, and at once bestirred himself to rescue others, but died exhausted when he tried to swim. Another had his left leg was broken, and his right ankle badly sprained. Another, his lips just above the surface of the fast-rising water, called lustily to those about him to help him out or start the pump; but three strong men tried in vain to raise him up, and the pump refused to answer their repeated signals. Ten minutes after another attempt to draw him out of the wreck met with easy success. The drowning man, who had gripped him so firmly before, had relaxed their grasp forever. This man, with a sixth who had also been withdrawn from the sump, crawled, with some assistance, up a steep and difficult "man-way" to the surface; but both sustained severe internal injuries, and died the morning. The first was recovered and the second in a dangerous condition. Their names were WM. MATHEWS and PATRICK DAY. The rest of the wounded were obliged to remain in the mine until a new rope could be procured and a temporary apparatus rigged, and it was not until 6 o'clock that they were finally raised to the surface. Three died during the night; the fourth, ALBERT KOCH, had had presence of mind enough, when he felt the cage going down, to grasp an iron bar above his head and draw himself up until the bar was level with his breast. The shock at the bottom loosed his hold, but not until the velocity of his fall was so checked that he escaped with less injuries than any of the others. These men were recovered without difficulty, but there were still six men under the water in the sump, and all efforts to find their bodies were unavailing, until the broken machinery was again started and the heavy chain was slowly lifted from the bottom, when the bodies were found, after considerable search, and at six o'clock this morning the last one was raised out of the horrible pit, and the weary workers went home to rest. The dead are: John Mathews, Elisha Manual, John Roper, Jacob Eline, David Jones, John McGinley, George Stout, Hugh McAnulty and Thomas Quigley. Wm. Mathews was fatally injured, and is now reported dead. The wounded are Albert Koch and Patrick Day. The cause of the accident was a defective tooth on the pinion-wheel—a small wheel on the fly-wheel shaft, which geared into the drum-wheel. The rope which raised and lowered the cage was brought up from the shaft, passed over a pulley above the mouth of the shaft, and then wound round a huge cylinder of wood, called the drum, a band of iron with projecting teeth, which fitted into a rim of iron called the drum-wheel; but in this case the drum-wheel was a large cog-wheel fitted to the end of the drum. There was a flaw in the iron of the pinion-wheel, and the tooth which covered it having been weakened by repeated thumps of its big neighbor, gave way at last, carrying two sound teeth with it. This caused a slipping of the machinery, and while the broken place came round again, the jar broke out a segment of the drum-wheel, in which, also, two or three ugly flaws are plainly visible. Somebody's iron was not first quality. When the drum-wheel broke the engine had no longer any control over the machinery, and its movements were now controlled entirely by the big plummet away down in the shaft, with a dozen men clinging to it, half-way between daylight and death. That the weight was sufficient to excite very rapid action on the part of the machinery, is evident from the appearance of things in that engine-house now. The long rope, coiled on the cylinder, is worn so that the solid oak planks of which it was built were torn asunder and broken into pieces, iron bars and wooden beams were shattered like pipestems, and the roof and side wall were torn down and flung in indiscriminate chaos among the wreck. Fortunately, the engine was uninjured, and so was the pump-shaft, whose wheel rested on the pinion-wheel on the side opposite to the drum-wheel. The pump was thrown out of gear and the shaft on which the pump-wheel revolved was made to do duty as a drum. By careful management and slow running, the pinion-wheel was made to work, notwithstanding its imperfect condition, and did good service in bringing up the men. If there had been proper grappling irons attached to the cage it would have been held by them, and the accident would not have happened. But, you see, none of these things were where they should have been, and so ten men are dead and nobody is to blame. It was a small colliery, and could not be expected to have all these costly contrivances. But there was a hole in the ground, and a deep one—110 yards deep—and a steep one. I have called it a shaft, and so does the mine inspector in his last report; but it is really a slope, pitching 75°; then 70°, then 60°—and men rode up and down this crooked chimney every day, because it was "the man-way" provided for them, yet so steep and inconvenient that they would rather risk their lives than use it. It is a dangerous mine in other respects, too. Four men have been burned in it by fire-damp explosions this Summer—one of them fatally.

It looks to an outsider as if the whole establishment was badly in need of reconstruction, but the people in the vicinity, not excepting the families of the sufferers, have no word of blame for the operators, Messrs. HEIN & GLASSMIRE. On the contrary, they express great sympathy for their misfortunes, and seem to think they have rather more than their share of "bad luck." It is probable that the colliery, like Avondale, is no worse than many others which have hitherto had better "luck."

Domestic Tragedy at Providence—A Jealous Husband Shoots Himself and Wife.

From the Providence Journal, Aug. 11.

A terrible tragedy occurred about 8 o'clock last evening in a small cottage house, No. 170 Atwell's-avenue, in which resides, as a boarder, with his wife's mother, RICHARD ARNOLD, a young man employed as an overseer in the works of the American Screw Company. It seems, from such information as we are able to gather, that yesterday ARNOLD and his wife went together down the river, where something occurred that aroused his jealous passions, which had before occasionally been manifested. His anger was somewhat inflamed by strong drink, and they were overheard to be in sharp altercation as they were going homeward along the streets. Soon after reaching home, ARNOLD went across the street and got another dram, and was then ready for the deed of violence and blood which he had occasionally threatened when in his jealous frenzy. Returning to the house, he called his wife from the bed-room, and as she came out he fired a revolver at her at short range, the ball entering the abdomen of the unfortunate victim. As she turned to escape, the wretch fired again and another ball entered her back. He was then grappled by SIMEO GARLAND, a brother-in-law, who endeavored to disarm him, but without success. The murderer then put the pistol to his own forehead, and lodged a ball at least five inches deep in his own head. Of course there was great alarm and excitement, the family being plunged in the deepest distress, and the neighborhood stirred into sympathetic action. Chief-of-Police GROSS was soon at the scene, doing whatever was proper to be done under the awful circumstances. At last accounts both the wounded parties were alive—the woman, entirely conscious, screaming with agony and praying to die; while the man was apparently in a stupor, like one in the throes of death. We understand that the surgeons have little hope that the life of the woman can be saved, although the case may take a favorable turn. The man, it is understood, must die. The parties have been married about seven years, and eight children have been born to them. The wife's condition is such as should have inspired the tender consideration on the part of the husband.

The Death of "Little Nell"—A Letter from Dickens.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Feeling that anything before unpublished touching the life and works of that great man who has done so much to elevate the lowly, encourage the virtuous and rebuke the proud and haughty; over whose writings we have laughed and wept and wondered, while our hearts have ever been softened and made better, I send you this copy of a note written and signed by his own hand—CHARLES DICKENS. It was written in answer to a note of inquiry by my brother, STANLEY SMITH, since deceased, at that time an editor in Albany. The original is in the possession of Rev. Dr. W. R. SPRAGUE, to whom it was presented by my brother, as a valuable addition to the doctor's extensive collection of autographs.

J. HYATT SMITH.

BROOKLYN, Monday, Aug. 8, 1870.

CARLTON HOTEL, NEW-YORK, Feb. 12, 1842.

MY DEAR SIR: Let me say, in answer to your letter, that the wanderings, history and death of Nell are quite imaginary and wholly fictitious. That many of the feelings which grow out of this little story, and are suggested by it, are familiar to me I need scarcely say. The grave has closed over very deep affection and strong love of mine. So far, and no farther, there is truth in it. I do not usually answer questions, having this reference, so freely. But yours is an honest letter, I believe. Therefore I give you an honest answer.

Your friend,
CHARLES DICKENS.

Mr. J. STANLEY SMITH, Albany, N. Y.

Festival of the Liederkranz at Jones' Wood.

Jones' Wood was attractively decorated with Chinese lanterns, last evening, and was well filled with a company of German merry-makers, assembled there on the occasion of the second Summer night's festival given by the Liederkranz Society, during the present season. The streets leading to the ground were lighted with illumination burners, and the entrance was brilliantly illuminated. The large open platform in the interior of the wood was surrounded by several hundred small hanging lanterns, and was also hung with flags and banners, making, with the crowd of joyous dancers, a very gaudy and pretty scene, a very brilliant scene, and contrasting to fine advantage with the dark trees and river in the background. The rain threatened to interrupt the festivities at the start, but fortunately ceased about 9 o'clock, after which time the dancing was kept up with unabated vigor until a late hour. Previous to the terpsichorean pleasure, the members of the society united in singing "The Scythian on the Rhine," and "What is the German's Fatherland," under the leadership of Mr. PAUL. The songs were rendered in German, and created a great amount of patriotic enthusiasm on the part of the listeners. Messrs. GRAFF, ARNES, and CLASSEN conducted the arrangements at the festival, and gave general enjoyment to every one who attended.

CURRENT NOTES.

Hydrophobia has been quite prevalent at New-Haven this season.

The oil fever is again raging in Iowa. Several wells have recently been discovered.

The colony of New-Sweden, in Maine, is said to be flourishing very satisfactorily.

The census, so far, shows that most of the towns in Rhode Island have had an increase of population since 1865.

Government clothing, valued at $3,000, was recently stolen from a public office at Chicago. It was subsequently recovered.

An inventive genius at Eau Claire, Wis., recently attempted to draw highwines with a lighted candle. The experiment cost $25,000.

Jackson, Mich., is at length about to have a $15,000 brewery. The projectors have been "brewing" over the matter for some time.

On Friday of last week, a man killed twenty-eight rattlesnakes within a short distance from Council Bluffs, Iowa. The story was not corroborated.

The total population of Chicago proves to be in greater than 306,605, which includes 3,617 colored persons—rather a come down from the high estimates of the newspapers.

The towns upon the line of the Lafayette, Bloomington and Mississippi Railroad, Illinois, have subscribed $305,000 to aid its speedy construction.

ALEXANDER MCCABE, of Savannah, Ga., was recently made the recipient of a handsome gold medal, in recognition of his services in having saved the life of J. T. THOMS, of that city.

The 11 o'clock day delivery at Boston has had to be temporarily discontinued, owing to the illness of the letter-carriers from the extreme heat.

A Maltese cat in Indiana, a short time since, had a severe encounter with a large black snake, and came off victorious, without having been once bitten, although the contest had lasted for more than half an hour.

The Montezuma (N. Y.) Salt Mines have three distinct veins of saline water, distant from the surface 211 feet, 235 feet and 500 feet. The production is 120 gallons of twenty-two ounces of salt to the gallon, per minute.

Two colored boys were arrested a few days since at Richmond, Va., for having attempted to throw a down mail train on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad off the track, two miles from Hanover Court-house.

An aged woman recently destroyed her life at St. Louis, Mo. She had suffered for years from a cancer in the stomach, and finding that there was no possible chance of recovery, threw herself into a pond.

An exchange hopes that the William and Mary College may have a season of prosperity commensurate with her claims upon the Southern people as one of the few remaining influences of the consecrated past.

An Indiana lady named HOPE lately became insane from the study of women's rights. If she had devoted her attention to any other subject there might be more reason to "hope" for her recovery.

JOHN W. COOKINGHAM, a young man fresh from the seminary at Utica, was arrested for perjury, at Albany, a day or two ago. The amount to be gained by the operation would not exceed $80, which is rather a small "stake" to lose a reputation upon.

The case of KING vs. KING, at Hartford, Conn., has resulted in the granting of a divorce to Mrs. KATIE M. KING. The report of the committee appointed by the Court was to the effect that the conduct of the defendant had been such as to defeat the marriage relation.

Cultivated farms in Nebraska can be purchased by settlers at from $10 to $100, Government lands from $2 50 to $5, and railroad lands from $5 25 to $7, per acre. A correspondent says that like all other States, they have an oversupply of doctors and lawyers.

A singular marriage was recently solemnized in the Mammoth Cave of Kentucky, at the desire of the bride, who had promised her mother that she never would marry the bridegroom "on the face of the earth." The recess of the cave where the ceremony was performed has since been known as the "Bridal Chamber."

At the Mount de Chantal Convent, near Wheeling, Va., there is at present a young lady named GUERRES, who has a voice of such surpassing beauty that her seclusion has been invaded by scores of managers and agents, with tempting offers to "bring her out," but so far she has resisted all overtures, and declares that she desires to end her life in peace.

Our Jersey City ghost sensation, having been republished by the Meriden (Conn.) newspapers, has already borne fruit in that exceedingly pleasant little city. During the past week the mansion of the Mayor, which enjoys the advantage of a front and rear entrance, has been disturbed by the continual ringing of bells. The door-bells have been rung while guards were placed upon them, and nothing could be seen. The poor Mayor is at his wits' ends to know what to do under the circumstances. The Spiritualists will probably claim that he has left some departed spirit at his door too long, and that he is now revenging the insult.

The correspondence between Gen. JOHN A. DIX and President GRANT, in reference to the railroad bond tax in Iowa has just been published. A report having been circulated that the President would not enforce the laws for the collection of the tax referred to, if resisted by citizens, Gen. DIX, under date of June 11, wrote to him for a denial of the same. In his reply the President says: "It is hardly necessary for me to deny such a statement. I would hardly invite a community to resist laws which I am sworn to execute. I do, however, emphatically deny the report, and state further, that if it becomes my duty to use force to execute the laws in Iowa, or any other State, I shall do so without hesitation."

A conditional marriage was solemnized some time since in Morgan County, Mo., the contracting parties being a Mr. JOHN P. RAIN and a Mrs. JANE BRUNER. Mrs. BRUNER has already been married twice. The first husband is dead and the second divorced, but Mrs. BRUNER not being without hopes of a final reconciliation between herself and Mr. BRUNER, stipulated with Mr. RAIN that if such a reconciliation were to be sought by Mr. BRUNER, he should resign his right, title and interest in her without the formality of another divorce. In future the probability is that this singular woman will have a good deal of "Rain," but very little sunshine.

A beautiful maiden at Lansingburg, N. Y., having been afflicted with the addresses of two lovers, usually about the same time, adopted rather a novel means of ridding herself of them. A few evenings since they called at her residence in their best black suits. She left them together on pretense of going upstairs, and in a few minutes the servant-maid made bold to enlist their services in the removal of some flour in the kitchen. They went to work willingly, and the maid found so many additional jobs for them to do, that the poor fellows were finally glad enough to escape from the house without seeing the object of their affections. They never went again.

A writer in the Hamilton, Canada, Times, signing himself "A. Fiddles, D. D.," and dating his communication from Brooklyn, seems to think that England does not care enough about the Canadians to avenge the wrongs which the foolish policy of the Dominion Government has brought upon them. "What she thinks of a Canadian," says the writer, "we all know, when she refuses to defend us against the foes which her misgovernment of Ireland has raised up against us. The life of a Canadian is not a very precious thing in the eyes of a GLADSTONE or a BRIGHT, and the sooner the truth is known the better is it for all parties."

In the last number of the National Standard, Mr. WENDELL PHILLIPS gives out as his opinion that temperance and the struggle between capital and labor will probably form the basis of the next political parties. "At one time," says Mr. PHILLIPS, "whether women should have the ballot seemed likely to be the next political question. And no doubt that movement is writing its own rapid victory on every statute book. Still no separate political party for that purpose is proposed anywhere. If any new and infamous outrage on woman, like the Contagious Diseases laws of Great Britain, should rouse popular feeling here, possibly on such a wave the movement might rise immediately to distinct political character. It is more probable that gradual changes in the laws will render any such mustering into political ranks unnecessary."

Mr. J. PORTER HOBBERT's encouraging speech on the condition at Dakota, and the advantages it offers for settlers, has been quite severely dealt with by a "friend" at Chicago, who declares that he could not allow the wind-bag of Mr. HOBBERT to go any longer without sticking a pin in it. He claims that an investigating committee had reported adversely to Dakota.

TO MANUFACTURERS AND OTHERS.
IMPORTANT PEREMPTORY SALE
BY AUCTION OF
900 BUILDING LOTS AND PLOTS
IN THE CITY OF SCRANTON, PENN.,
On TUESDAY, Aug. 16, at 10 o'clock, on the premises, in Scranton, by LAWRENCE CAILEY & FLEURY.

Nine hundred beautifully-located building lots, of 25 to 26 feet 3 inches front by 120 to 140 feet in depth, on avenues 50 feet in width, each lot having a back outlet on street 20 feet wide.

These lots form the most beautiful portion of the city plot, gradually rising in slope several hundred feet, giving superb views from each of the blocks of many miles in extent.

For salubrity, beauty of its buildings, width of its avenues, together with its business and social advantages, Scranton offers rare inducements. From a population of about ten thousand twelve years ago, it now numbers upward of sixty thousand persons.

A mountain stream of large volume crosses the property at an elevation sufficient to supply abundantly all the city with the purest water for domestic or steam purposes.

The particular attention of manufacturers and others is invited to this rare opportunity for profitable investment. Coal can be had for about fifty cents per ton, and now retails at from $4 to $5 at the lowest figures. Four or five trunk railroads centre here, being only four or five hours from New-York.

Terms of sale: Half cash, balance on liberal time, if desired, at six per cent. interest. Nuisances indicted.

WE OFFER FOR SALE
$600,000
Evansville, Henderson, and Nashville Railroad of Kentucky 1st Mortgage Bonds, dated 1867, bearing interest at 7 per cent. per annum, payable on the 1st days of January and July, at the Bank of America, New-York.

The line of this Road extends from Henderson, on the Ohio River, to the State line of Tennessee, passing through the coal fields of Western Kentucky, and forming important connections with Chicago, Nashville, the South and East. Sixty-three miles are completed at a cost of $2,000,000 raised almost entirely from stock subscriptions, leaving only thirty-three miles to be built, of which twenty-three miles are now graded and under contract. The first and only mortgage on all the property and franchises of the Company is for one million of Dollars, payable as above. The proceeds of the sale will be applied by J. Edgar Thomson, Esq., of Philadelphia, the Treasurer of the Company, to finish the work, for which purpose, with the other resources at command, they are amply sufficient. The coal deposits of the Road are now quite large, and by the middle of June the coal fields will be reached, which will increase the extensive local traffic of the road, added to its important connections, will make it absolutely remunerative to the stockholders. $400,000 of this Loan have already been negotiated, and the remainder will be held, for the present, at 95 and accrued interest, at which rate they constitute a safe and desirable investment.

Further particulars will be furnished on application to

The Saratoga Summer Meeting—Wild Bar—Magnitude Wins the Kenner Stakes—Nannie Douglas the Summer Handicap and Lady Foley the $400 Purse.

From Our Special Correspondent.

CONGRESS HALL, Saratoga, Friday, Aug. 12, 1870.

The second Summer racing reunion at this fashionable watering-place commenced today, under auspices which insure a brilliant season. The morning gave threatening indications of rain, but about 11 o'clock the sun broke through the heavy clouds and shone out bright and clear, following hundreds of late visitors who had commenced their journey today to change their transit, and with themselves to their private cottages, enjoyment the racing. The grand stand was early filled with a brilliant array of beauty and fashion, but the fact that the public stand, with the low tariff of admission, had scarcely an occupant, showed how much more racing pedigree depends on fashion at Saratoga than the popular taste for the sport. Most of the prominent turfmen from different parts of the Union that were present at the Long Branch meeting were present here. Just as the first race was concluded, the dense masses of black clouds, which had rapidly gathered overhead, burst in a terrific storm of rain, and rendered the course deep in mud and water.

THE KENNER STAKES.

This race, exclusively for three-year olds, by subscription, half forfeit, with $3,000 added by the Saratoga Association, two miles, had four runners, which made the value of the stake to the winner amount to the handsome sum of $3,020 net. These were A. BELMONT's ch. c. Telegram, by Consor, dam imported Maud; R. J. O'FALLON's ch. c. Governor Bowie, by Leamington, dam Undine; MCCORMICK & PAGE's b. c. Hamburg, by Lexington, dam by Churchill; F. MORRIS' ch. f. Remorseless, by Eclipse, dam Barbarity; and A. BELMONT's b. c. Enquirer, by Lexington, dam Lodi. This was a splendid field of horses, for, with the exception of Governor Bowie, all of them had distinguished themselves, Hamburg, as two years, ran and won a mile race at Cincinnati, in 1:45, the fastest two-year-old time on record, beating Enquirer, Maggie B. R., Lynchburg, and others. This year his only appearance was for the Saratoga Cup, at the July meeting, where he suffered defeat by Helmbold. Enquirer ran successfully at two years old, and this year he won mile heat and two-mile heat races at Lexington, a two-mile-heat race at Cincinnati, and a mile-heat race and two-mile-heat race at Long Branch, beating the best horses of his year. Telegram had run a good second to Kingfisher for the Travers Stakes, and was alleged, by the friends of the stable, to be as good as Gimelg at any distance. He had, however, been suffering from diabetes a few days before, and was not quite up to the mark in point of condition. Remorseless, as a two-year old, was almost invincible, but has not run before this season. She is a very delicate mare to train, and her party were afraid she would find the heavy weight and the distance too much for her. The shower in the morning had rendered the track somewhat heavy and holding, but not to any great extent. Governor Bowie was on the track, but his attendants wasted so much time in preparing him that the judges started the other horses before he was saddled, and he was left behind. The betting was very heavy, for the Hamburg party felt sanguine that he would retrieve the laurels he lost in the Cup race, and win this richer, more preferable stake. Still Enquirer's friends were not shaken in their allegiance to this greatest and best of Lexington's sons, but stanchly backed him in the pools, Telegram's adherents were also firm in their allegiance, and bought him freely, as also did the followers of [Mr. MORRIS' stable with Remorseless. Enquirer sold for $1,000, Hamburg for $600, Remorseless $400, Telegram $400, and Governor Bowie $40. C. MILLER rode Hamburg, HENNESSY was on Telegram, COLSTON on the favorite, and ——— on Remorseless. When the start was made, Telegram was in front, with Enquirer and Hamburg next, and Remorseless last. Going around the turn, Hamburg went in front and made the running, Enquirer laying at his saddle-girths as they passed the quarter-pole. On the backstretch Hamburg opened a gap of two lengths before Enquirer, who led Telegram at far, Remorseless outpaced, being far behind. At the half-mile pole Enquirer had closed up the gap a length, with Telegram four lengths behind him. They ran thus along the lower stretch and to the stand on the first mile, Hamburg then leading Enquirer a length and a half; two lengths separating the latter from Telegram, and Remorseless as far behind. Going round the turn Hamburg was still two lengths in front of Enquirer, and his friends were exulting that he would never be headed in the race. But their hopes were suddenly dashed, for Enquirer's rider now let him out, and in a few strides he had collared and passed Hamburg, leading two lengths at the quarter-pole—Telegram three lengths behind the latter. On the backstretch Hamburg commenced quitting most unmistakably, and Enquirer, leaving him at every stride, was six lengths in front at the three-quarter pole, and galloped home without being touched by whip or spur, an easy winner by three lengths; a length and a half separating Hamburg from Telegram, who was third, and Remorseless beaten off. Time—3:48¾, the first mile being run in 1:51¾.

FIRST RACE.—The Kenner Stakes, for three-year olds, two miles, $500 entrance, $250 forfeit; the Saratoga Association to add $3,000.

THE SUMMER HANDICAP.

The Summer Handicap, for all ages, two miles and a quarter, $50 each, half forfeit, with $1,000 added, had thirteen entries and six acceptances, but the heavy state of the track prevented all but Nannie Douglas and Tasmania starting. Helmbold, who had been backed at long odds against the field, Lecaine, Sir Joseph and Cavalier paying forfeit rather than run in the heavy ground. The betting was $400 to $200 on Nannie Douglas. Tasmania made the running from the fall of the flag at so strong a pace that after going a quarter of a mile she had opened a gap of twenty lengths. On the second mile this lead became gradually reduced, and as they passed the stand the second time there were only ten lengths between them. On the next quarter Nannie Douglas collared Tasmania, and they ran together along the backstretch and past the half-mile pole lapped. Tasmania now began to fall back, and Nannie Douglas, quitting her, galloped home an easy winner by six lengths. Time—4:38¾.

SECOND RACE.—The Summer Handicap, for all ages, two and a quarter miles, $50 entrance; $25 forfeit; $1,000 added; weights to appear 1st of August.

THE $400 PURSE.

The third race was for a purse of $400, three-quarters of a mile, for all ages, and had twelve entries. These were: Judge Curtis, Chillicothe, Felicity, Lady Foley, Belle, Alta Vela, Boulton, Colonius colt and Hurdlestone. Judge Curtis was the favorite, selling for $200, Felicity $100, Alta Vela $50, Chillicothe $40, and the field $20. The weight and heavy ground proved too much for the favorite, who could only gain fourth place. A fine finish between Felicity and Lady Foley resulted in the latter winning by half a length, Alta Vela third, Judge Curtis fourth, Chillicothe fifth, PENDOCK sixth, Boulton seventh and Hurdlestone last. Time—1:24. As showing the low estimation in which the winner was held by the turf connoisseurs, we may note that she paid in one part of 1,000 the night before for $10.

THIRD RACE.—Purse $400, for all ages, three-fourths of a mile.

Long Shot of the Season—Wild Bar Gives Magnitude a Good Beating for the Kenner Stakes—Nannie Douglas Wins the Summer Handicap—Lady Foley Wins the $400 Purse—Two Exciting Races—Condition of Lady Thorn.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 12.—This being the last day of the Buffalo Park meeting, an immense crowd of persons were in attendance, anticipating superior sport on account of the character of the horses entered, and the extra purse of $4,000 to any horse beating Dexter's time. The weather was cool and delightful. On the call of the horses, President WELLS announced that Jesse Wales being lame from a cut in her fetlock, and Forty having been drawn, there would be no double-team race, but, as a substitute, Lucy and George Wilkes would trot for a purse of $1,000. Disappointment was visible on every countenance, and the interest in the race considerably dampened. The appearance on the track of Goldsmith Maid soon caused a reaction, and the betting ran high on the time. The horses had the disadvantage of a strong wind to contend with. Lady Thorn being injured at Rochester, and Rocky having been drawn, the purse for all horses was contended for by Goldsmith Maid and George Palmer. The following is a summary: Purse $2,000 for all horses; $1,000 to first horse; $500 to second, $1,000 to third.

Budd Doble's b. m. Goldsmith Maid.....1 1 1
Charles Champlain's br. g. George Palmer.....2 2 2
Time—2:24¾, 2:23, 2:23.

The following is a summary of the race substituted for that for double teams:

Lucy.....1 1 1
George Wilkes.....2 2 2
Time—2:25, 2:27, 2:24¾.

The trotting between Wilkes and Lucy was highly exciting, and in a measure compensated for the disappointment in the double-team race. Lady Garfield and John Morrissey were brought on the track, during the heats, and exhibited. Both horses had entirely recovered from their severe usage in the five-mile dash of yesterday, and looked in excellent condition. Prominent veterinary surgeons, who visited Lady Thorn at Rochester, publish a card this morning, in which they say that Lady Thorn has received no permanent injuries, and that she will soon be able to do duty. The visitors are leaving the city by every train.

The Weather—Effect of the Heat.

The following were the indications of the thermometer in the shade, yesterday, at the hours mentioned, at WM. P. BYRNE's Mineral Water Spa, No. 196 Broadway:

	Deg.		Deg.
6 A. M.	76	4 P. M.	86
8 A. M.	78	6 P. M.	82
10 A. M.	84	8 P. M.	82
Noon.	87½	10 P. M.	81
2 P. M.	86	12 P. M.	79

Despite the heavy rains of the past two days and nights, the temperature has advanced, until the heat has again become not only uncomfortable, but dangerous. Yesterday was one of the most trying days we have had since the terrible term of July, and, to many, the added dampness made the heat more intolerable. There have been a few cases of sun-stroke occasionally reported ever since the close of the July heated term, but yesterday the cases became alarming, both from their number and severity. Several were fatal, and all were of a very serious character. The following are the casualties which came to the knowledge of the Police:

JAMES WOOD, a printer, living at No. 108 Mulberry-street, died from exhaustion early in the evening after returning from work; the Coroner was notified.

PATRICK MAHER, aged thirty-five years, of No. 9 Greenwich-street, died suddenly at 6½ P. M. from effects of heat, and the Coroner was notified.

DENNIS KING, a laborer, living at No. 16 Thames-street, was prostrated while at work in the hold of the ship Southampton, lying at pier No. 47 East River, and died in a few minutes; the Coroner was notified.

MARGARET MURRAY, whose residence is not known, was prostrated by the heat opposite No. 321 East Thirty-second-street, and taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Mrs. MENTO, of Grand-street, Williamsburg, was sun-struck in Grand-street, near Mott, and taken to Park Hospital.

PHILIP PETSER, a German, living at the corner of Second-street and avenue B, was prostrated in Third-street, near Avenue C, and taken to Bellevue Hospital.

JOHN MCCABE was prostrated while at work in the blacksmith-shop No. 305 East Twenty-second-street, and taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Meeting of the Working-men's Central Union—The Democracy Condemned, and Grant's Administration Indorsed.

A regular meeting of the Working-men's Central Union was held last evening at the head-quarters of the Association, No. 6 Clinton-place. A motion was made for the appointment of five members of the City Reform Association as a committee to confer with the Standing Committee of the Working-men's Central Union. The following gentlemen were unanimously appointed as such committee: Col. GIBBONS and Messrs. THOS. F. GEARY, VANCE, ODELL, and HOLTZE. The officers of the Working-men's Union are Col. GEO. W. GIBBONS, President; J. H. G. MCGLOINE, Vice-President; WM. H. ROONEY, Secretary; and Gen. GEO. W. COLE, Treasurer. After the transaction of the formal business of the Union the following preamble and resolutions were passed unanimously:

Whereas, The Working-men's Central Union of the State of New-York do condemn the action of the Democratic Party in the State for the extravagant and corrupt manner in which it administers the offices of the State Government; and

Whereas, instead of returning honest and the faithful administration of the trusts confided to them under the solemn promises to carry out that platform, they have, yesterday, thrown the world of which was fraud and corruption, which today hold high carnival, probably ending in anarchy and certainly in revolution; therefore

Resolved, That we, as law-abiding citizens, consider it our duty to avert the present crisis of affairs in the State of New-York by a support for place and office such party as will give us protection, and give to each citizen his rights and privileges under the Constitution, but under no consideration shall we turn any alliance with Tammany Hall.

Resolved, That we highly approve and indorse the Administration of Gen. GRANT, and that the excellent selection by him of Cabinet officers and the manner in which the President has inaugurated and carried out reforms.

Another resolution was offered and passed in regard to Collector MURPHY, whereby this organization strongly indorsed him. After the transaction of some other unimportant business the meeting adjourned for two weeks.

Probable Murder in Brooklyn—A Man Knocked down by Woman's Skull with a Shovel.

Last night BRIDGET O'DONNEL, fifty-five years of age, residing on Twenty-seventh-street, near Third-avenue, Brooklyn, got into a dispute about family affairs, with a man named THOMAS HULLEREAN, the result of which was that he struck her on the head with a shovel, fracturing her skull. Dr. ROGERS was called in, and on examination he found her in a precarious condition. The assailant was arrested. He is a notorious character, well known for his ungovernable temper. She was also a woman of no mild disposition.

Men's Inhumanity to Women.

Mrs. CHAS. F. GAMBERTON, of Newark, appeared before Police Justice DRAKE, last night, to enter a complaint against her husband, who, according to her story, has treated her in a most brutal manner. The complaint, on which he will be arrested this morning, is that he struck her, knocked her, and, taking her by the head, forced it back, at the same time brandishing a knife, saying, "I'll will take but a moment to do it," but fortunately she escaped from him before he carried his threat into execution. At another time, previous to this, when she was sick with a two-days' old child, he shook a lighted kerosene lamp over her head, thus putting her life in jeopardy, and frightening her terribly.

Brutal Assault.

About 1 o'clock yesterday morning, three colored men, named respectively GEO. OBERLY, CHARLES OVINGTON, and EMANUEL WRIGHT, stopped at the house of WILLIAM CUNNINGHAM, near the City line, on Wyckoff-road, Brooklyn, and asked permission to enter. They were refused by CUNNINGHAM, who feared from their appearance that they were dissolute characters. Enraged at this, they broke in the door, and on entering struck the man on the head with some sharp instrument, wounding him badly. They

Last evening a public meeting was held in the lecture-room of Bethel Church, in Sullivan-street, by the colored citizens of this City, for the purpose of making preparations for the New-York State Labor Convention, to be held at Albany on the 24th of this month. It was called to order at 8 o'clock by Rev. E. H. TAPPAN, Chairman. A Committee of five was appointed to receive subscriptions to pay the expenses of the delegates to and from the Convention. Among them were Dr. MCDONOUGH, Messrs. J. M. GARNEY and M. V. G. BATO. On motion of the Secretary, J. M. GARNEY, the following delegates were appointed to prepare statements of all persons engaged as artisans and mechanics: Wm. P. Butler, E. E. Turpin, Mr. Lawrence, Messrs. J. M. Garney, Charles Reason and B. V. G. Bato.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

NEW-YORK.

Officer MCCABE, of the Sanitary Squad, under the orders of the Board of Health, arrested Moses MARX yesterday, and brought him before Alderman WELLS, at Essex Market Police Court, and charged him with keeping six cows in a vacant lot, No. 238 Delancey-street. For this violation of section 10 of the Sanitary Code, he was compelled to give bail in $500 to answer at the Special Sessions.

Yesterday in the Yorkville Police Court, before Acting Police Justice MCGUIRE, JAMES LANE, a liquor-dealer, was arraigned on a charge of committing a rape upon Miss Emma WAY, a servant girl, on Saturday afternoon, on Tuesday night. The prisoner asked for an examination, which was granted, but before the examination was commenced, a note was received by the Court from the Commissioners of Emigration, requesting the examination to be postponed until 3 o'clock P. M. today, as then they would be present in the interest of the girl, as she, having been only a few months in the country, is still under their care.

It is reported that a Deputy Health Officer entered the office of a Broad-street broker, yesterday, with the intention of inflicting corporal punishment upon the proprietor thereof for an alleged insult. The Health Officer, who was armed with a cowhide, demanded an apology from the broker, which being refused, the Officer commenced to inflict it. The broker, however, in a short time managed to disarm his antagonist, and forced him to make a hasty retreat.

The row which occurred in the Bay, on Monday last, during the race for the American Cup, is said to have taken place on the steamer Sylvan Shore instead of the Sylvan Grove, as formerly reported.
